Plenty of people around here use stuff to slick their hair. I don't like that stuff. I find having regular hair cuts keeps things in control without having to use something greasy.

How is that stale beer shampoo you use working for you these days.

What about Savages rights? Some Brit government hack decided they didn't like him and lumped him in with murders and criminals advocating violence so banned him from entering the country just because they don't like what he stands for. That is defamation of character.

If we can have Christmas, why not Islam day? Or even Satin day?

Just like guns, freedom of religion is in our constitution. We can not selectively enforce one amendment and not the others. (maybe in texASS) It's too bad most republican'ts have a distorted narrow view of Islam acquired through Ru$H and FAUX. Of the small group of Islamics I know, they are friendlier if not more friendlier then church-going christains. I'm sure other countries look at our killer christain groups here and see the same thing of what you see about muslim. It's just that there was no political ad campaign sending out millions of DVDs to all the households in their country!

Of course, if we remove all religion from government, we would not be having this problem now. I think it's just the tip of the iceberg in gubberment funded religious groups. YOUR tax money will have to equally be divided between christianity, Scientology, muslim and cult of Bob!

Enjoy!

I agree. Nothing against the Protestants either. I remember when I went to the hospital once and at the admitting place where they ask you all the questions.

The lady asked me my religious affiliation. I said baptist and she responded with " OK Protestant." I said "no, I am baptist" and she said "you're protestant then." She said "there is no difference between protestants and baptists." Even though I knew there is a big difference I told her "then just type in baptist instead of protestant if there is no difference." She wasn't too please with me, I don't even know what she typed, she could've typed atheist for all I know.

I guess I'll find out over the next 20 years or so. So far, I've avoided the heart issues a lot of my friends have at this point. But then again,

I never smoked, I've cut way down on meat, and avoid dairy stuff for the most part, except for some ice cream once in a while. It's easy to avoid most dairy stuff, since I think cheese is pretty disgusting, and hate mayo and salad dressing too. I'm very picky. But if it's fried fish or shrimp, I can't resist that stuff very well.

The local big shot preachers (There are two) drive a loaded Escalade, and the other a high end Mercedes. I don't see either of them ever really helping anyone who goes to their churches. I know someone who had two little kids, one with health issues, who lost her house after her hubby went on the run and stopped paying support, and the loving leadership of the church wouldn't give her a dime to help save her house. That's when she finally figured out they wanted her loot, and nothing more, and he quit. Now, she lives with her in-laws, in the basement, and is trying to save up enough money to rent a small house, and get the hell out of there.

I picture him with big hair for some reason. Wearing a string tie, and carrying a giant bible. There's a guy who attends one of the local megachurches, and that's his standard outfit. The biggest bible I have ever seen. Must be 6" thick, and 15" X 20" in height and width. He's not legally blind, as he drives, so I don't know what the giant bible is all about.

Such primitive torture techniques described above and elsewhere belong to the medieval ages. The perfect torture is such that doesn't leave any physical evidence in forms of scares, burn-marks, destroyed lungs from water-boarding or crippled legs from beating the feet. The perfect torture doesn't leave any physical evidence, but rather a big scare on the soul of the victim. He/she is turned into a human wreck without any obvious reason a doctor/therapist can relate to. There are many obvious way make a subject psychically destroyed. Rape is a well know technique that leaves the victim in state of a shock and trembling. Their whole believe system becomes shattered. Their sense of honour gets crushed. Image how a Muslim would feel being raped in the ass by a pig!

I dare not think about the modern techniques of psychological brain-wash and torture the FSB (former KGB), NSAX [1] or even the Chinese are using today. They probably use it remotely by some devilish laser-rays or neuron-rays. Has anybody really wondered what all these low-orbiting satellites are doing up there. I'm sure they are there not just for surveillance. These satellites are from 50km up and should have no problem reading right over your shoulder and administer head-pain in anyone they care to torture.

My point is that these smarter agencies can administer torture from anywhere and to any person living in a daily situation. The subject may not even be aware of the torture being administered. One of the objectives of such torture would be to get the subject to feel psychotic, mentally drained for live-force and in the ultimate end commit suicide. You see.
No evidence of torture. The coroner would have a slam-dunk case, but the ultimate goal of the torturer would be obtained w/o compromising itself.

Are these techniques just science-fiction or are they being used today? I guess yes.
But how does one prove it. Duh, we can't; these techniques are a very well kept secret of these agencies

So that does not exclude 'demagoguery' as

Another Liberal Lie and Democrat Distortion :
Since what is now being called Torture did help prevent a 9/11 type Attack on LA.

- The answer is that you, personally, want to watch.

KC - If you had ever saw a Family Member, a Friend or Loved One In-Pain and Suffering : You Would Not Want To Watch [.]

- You get your rocks off by hearing about torture.

KC - Typical Liberal-Fascist Thinking Torture = Sex.

- You are a coward.

KC - 'coward'

- - - = = = RHF's Canned Reply 'Rant' = = = - - - typical liberal-fascist thinking with respect to other human beings who do not bow-down to them ~ RHF

- But so what, you want to watch other people being tortured.

KC -clearly- Your 'projections' -wrt- my mental reasoning and motives; are in-fact a mirror of your own Psyche with your repeated allusions to 'watching' and 'sex'.

- Not that torture ever reveals anything,
- how many witches got burned do you > think? How many satanists?

KC - Not talking about 'witches' or 'satinists' unless you personally know of some who have recently been 'burned' here i the USA.

We are Talking about Islam-O-Fascist Terrorists who plan Terrorist Attacks like 9/11 and Kill Thousands of Innocent People Men, Women and Children.

- The fact is that all the persons involved in torture
- are criminally culpable. The fact that they won't
- be brought to trial shows what prosecutorial
- discretion is.

KC -fwiw- Personally I 'think' that both Bush and Cheney should be Accountable; and Said They Asked For The Legal Advisements On What Constitutes Torture : State That They Gave The Orders; and Name The Names of The Members of the US Congress Who Either Gave The OK or Their Passive Approval to what is now being Called Torture After-the-Fact by many of those same Members of the US Congress.

Pelosi & Reid & Biden + Et Al

Former us president GW Bush and former vp Dick Cheney need to Stand-Up before the US Congress On TV and Start Name Names.

Liberal Logic - outing CIA agents is OK unless it's Valerye Plame.

Liberal Logic - Clinton Assassinating Usama Bin laden is OK but Bush Waterboarding Bin Laden is a crime against humanity.

- Um, No. Obama said this was already covered
- under existing Illinois law -- which it is.
- Illinois Law 720 ILCS 510.6.

More Obama-Double-Speak by the Obama-Speakers©

By Voting Nay {No} 'Against' a Born-Alive Infants Protection Act which would have Banning many/most Partial Birth Abortions in the State of Illinois; the then Illinois State Senator Obama Voted for the continuation of "Partial Birth Abortion" -aka- the Killing of Living Full-Term Babies

Illinois State Senator Obama FAILED to Protect
The Rights of the Live-Born {Living} Infants To Life.

Historically, the percentage of Americans who said they had no religious affiliation (pollsters refer to this group as the "nones") has been very small -- hovering between 5 percent and 10 percent. However, Putnam says the percentage of "nones" has now skyrocketed to between 30 percent and 40 percent among younger Americans.

So a loudmouth asshole who, yaks on the radio all day attacking people, doesn't like it when he's attacked back. Boo hoo.

You don't get it. You are willing to throw the country away to save your own; that is not patriotism. The USA does not torture. That is a core value.

ï¿½ï¿½Treat them with humanity, and let them have no reason to complain of our copying the brutal example of the British Army in their treatment of our unfortunate brethren who have fallen into their hands,ï¿½ he wrote. In all respects the prisoners were to be treated no worse than American soldiers; and in some respects, better. Through this approach, Washington sought to shame his British adversaries, and to demonstrate the moral superiority of the American cause.ï¿½

In the worst of times ï¿½ when foreign troops literally occupied American soil, torturing and murdering American patriots ï¿½ and few believed that the cause of the revolution could ultimately win against the might of the British Empire, the first Commander in Chief of the U.S.A. set the precedent that this society is to lead even our enemies by ï¿½benignant sympathy of [our] example.ï¿½ To win the war against the occupying army of Redcoats, the American revolutionaries needed right on their side."

That's not true. The alleged Library Tower plot was thwarted months before Condi first gave the word to start torturing. This from official Bush Administration timelines.

I'm sure he's thrilled, this is more publicity than he's received in ages.

My guess is that the Brits will end up apologizing all over the place for this, and the right will be able to claim a "victory over oppression and tyranny".

Some of this is just verbiage. Would you use the word "assassinating" in relationship to what a swat team does to a hostage holding bank robber? The distinction between appropriate and inappropriate use of force is quite important.

What a coincidence. Then there's the demolition of building Seven. It takes weeks of planning to place the charges properly.

The Neocons want to pretend there was never a Nuremberg trial, never a Geneva Convention, never a rebuttal of the "Orders are Orders (Befehl ist befehl) defence. They also want to ignore the fact that the Nazi judiciary itself was put on trial at Nuremberg for legalizing torture and cruel and unusual punishment as depicted in the movie Judgement at Nuremburg. They want to pretend its all debatable.

Yep. Really SMART cookies, those Brits!

HERE'S a good summation of the banning of that hateful LOSER, from across the pond:

Named and shamed: the 16 barred from UK
By Beverley Rouse, Press Association
Tuesday, 5 May 2009

Sixteen people banned from entering the UK were "named and shamed"
by the Home Office today.

Home Secretary Jacqui Smith said she decided to make public the names of 16 people banned since October so others could better understand what sort of behaviour Britain was not prepared to tolerate.

The list includes hate preachers, anti-gay protesters and a far-right
US talk show host.

"I think it's important that people understand the sorts of values and sorts of standards that we have here, the fact that it's a privilege to come and the sort of things that mean you won't be welcome in this country," Ms Smith told GMTV.

"Coming to this country is a privilege. If you can't live by the rules that we live by, the standards and the values that we live by, we should exclude you from this country and, what's more, now we will make public those people that we have excluded.

"We are publishing the names of 16 of those that we have excluded since October. We are telling people who they are and why it is we don't want them in this country."

She said the number of people excluded from Britain had risen from an average of two a month to five a month since October.

The list of the 16 "least wanted" includes radio talk show host Michael Savage, real name Michael Weiner.

"This is someone who has fallen into the category of fomenting hatred, of such extreme views and expressing them in such a way that it is actually likely to cause inter-community tension or even violence if that person were allowed into the country," Ms Smith told BBC Breakfast.

Also named are American Baptist pastor Fred Waldron Phelps Snr and his daughter Shirley Phelps-Roper, who have picketed the funerals of Aids victims and claimed the deaths of US soldiers are a punishment for US tolerance of homosexuality.

"If people have so clearly overstepped the mark in terms of the way not just that they are talking but the sort of attitudes that they are expressing to the extent that we think that this is likely to cause or have the potential to cause violence or inter-community tension in this country, then actually I think the right thing is not to let them into the country in the first place. Not to open the stable door then try to close it later," Ms Smith said.

Hamas MP Yunis Al-Astal, Jewish extremist Mike Guzovsky, former Ku Klux Klan grand wizard Stephen Donald Black and neo-Nazi Erich Gliebe are also on the list released today.

Artur Ryno and Pavel Skachevsky, the former leaders of a violent Russian skinhead gang which committed 20 racially motivated murders, are also banned from coming to Britain. Both are currently in prison.

Making up the rest of the 16 named by the Home Office today are preachers Wadgy Abd El Hamied Mohamed Ghoneim, Abdullah Qadri Al Ahdal, Safwat Hijazi and Amir Siddique, Muslim activist Abdul Ali Musa (previously Clarence Reams), murderer and Hezbollah terrorist Samir Al Quntar and Kashmiri terror group leader Nasr Javed.

Totally rebutted at Nuremberg. Gonzalez and the Neocons were trying to turn the US into a third world banana republic with a south american dictator in charge. That "permanent GOP majority".... HAHAHAHA!

RHF,

What are you saying? That trauma resulting in pain and suffering is NOT torture? If so, could you provide at least a hint of what your reasoning is?

Confused, as usual, by your writing style....

So, all those terrorists murderers have to do is ask God (Allah) for forgiveness? If that's all that's required, Hell must be a very lonely place.....

If that's all that tortutrers have to do to be in God's grace, then that's all terrorists have to do, right?

Aw, the paradox of religious-based justice....

so you're saying a nation doesn't get to have any choice over who they let in? or is it just that they don't get to choose whether americans get to visit? or rightwingers? or anybody who's not arab/muslim? i don't see where you're going with this.

not sure what part of the British Bill of Rights gives foreign radio actually, i think it is pretty silly in savage's case. his visit isn't going to "stir up trouble" any more than his work from the US does, if any.

where this kind of thing makes sense is with some of the neoNazis, etc. who, under the guise of "journalism" or "reporting on events" are in fact involved in planning and executing them. AFAIK, Savage isn't involved in anything like that; and if his diatribes are "incentives" to violence or some such, then they're just as incentivizing coming in via the intertubes from the US, so there's nothing to gain by slamming the door on him personally.

bottom line is, though, that the brits do have the right to run their country as they want to, without regard to how the US would do it.

two things i particularly enjoy about the uproar, thought:
1) Savage's reference to this violating the Magna Carta. He must have studied a different copy than I did. Here, Mike: http://en.wikipedia.org/wiki/Magna_carta 1a) this being from the same guy who said "Don't tell me they're entitled to a rational defense, I'm so sick of this" in response to the decision in Boumediene v. Bush upholding the right of habeas corpus, no less. Here, Mike:
http://en.wikipedia.org/wiki/Magna_carta#Rights_still_in_force_today
2) His threat of having his listeners boycott Britain from their future travel plans. Yeah, the total number of passports among Savage's fan base wouldn't fill a supersized beverage container.

DUMB to realize that 90% of all who support EQUAL rights for Gays are ALLIED egalitarians who are STRAIGHT ---

FEEL FREE to think I'm gay,
if that's what rings yer bell.

That would bother me precisely as much as it would if you thought were left-handed.

And I'm not either one.

Handedness, sexual orientation, race, and eye color are all merely TRIVIAL variations of NORMALCY.

Ignorance knows no bounds, and homophobes are the

By Beverley Rouse, Press Association
Tuesday, 5 May 2009

Sixteen people banned from entering the UK were "named and shamed"
by the Home Office today.

Home Secretary Jacqui Smith said she decided to make public the names of 16 people banned since October so others could better understand what sort of behaviour Britain was not prepared to tolerate.

The list includes hate preachers, anti-gay protesters and a far-right
US talk show host.

"I think it's important that people understand the sorts of values and sorts of standards that we have here, the fact that it's a privilege to
country," Ms Smith told GMTV.

"Coming to this country is a privilege. If you can't live by the rules that we live by, the standards and the values that we live by, we should exclude you from this country and, what's more, now we will make public those people that we have excluded.

"We are publishing the names of 16 of those that we have excluded since October. We are telling people who they are and why it is we don't want them in this country."

She said the number of people excluded from Britain had risen from an average of two a month to five a month since October.

The list of the 16 "least wanted" includes radio talk show host Michael Savage, real name Michael Weiner.

"This is someone who has fallen into the category of fomenting hatred, of such extreme views and expressing them in such a way that it is actually likely to cause inter-community tension or even violence if that person were allowed into the country," Ms Smith told BBC Breakfast.

Also named are American Baptist pastor Fred Waldron Phelps Snr and his daughter Shirley Phelps-Roper, who have picketed the funerals of Aids victims and claimed the deaths of US soldiers are a punishment for US tolerance of homosexuality.

"If people have so clearly overstepped the mark in terms of the way not just that they are talking but the sort of attitudes that they are expressing to the extent that we think that this is likely to cause or have the potential to cause violence or inter-community tension in this country, then actually I think the right thing is not to let them into the country in the first place. Not to open the stable door then try to close it later," Ms Smith said.

Hamas MP Yunis Al-Astal, Jewish extremist Mike Guzovsky, former Ku Klux Klan grand wizard Stephen Donald Black and neo-Nazi Erich Gliebe are also on the list released today.

Artur Ryno and Pavel Skachevsky, the former leaders of a violent Russian skinhead gang which committed 20 racially motivated murders, are also banned from coming to Britain. Both are currently in prison.

Making up the rest of the 16 named by the Home Office today are preachers Wadgy Abd El Hamied Mohamed Ghoneim, Abdullah Qadri Al Ahdal, Safwat Hijazi and Amir Siddique, Muslim activist Abdul Ali Musa (previously Clarence Reams), murderer and Hezbollah terrorist Samir Al Quntar and Kashmiri terror group leader Nasr Javed.

The Question Becomes : Is Torture Defined By The Use of Force ?

[Is the Use of Force the Defining Element of Torture ?]

That trauma resulting in pain and suffering is NOT torture?

-reposted-
Not To The Person Who Is The Subject Of The Use Of Physical Force and/or Emotional Trauma Which Results In Pain, Suffering and/or Their Death.

Note the use of "and/or Emotional Trauma"

Inclusive Words 'and/or'

Operative Words 'Emotional Trauma'

- If so, could you provide at least a hint
- of what your reasoning is?

The Use of 'Physical Force' to Inflict Pain and Suffering -results- In Actual Pain and Suffering.

The Use of 'Emotional Trauma' to Inflict Pain and Suffering -results- In Actual Pain and Suffering.

- Confused, as usual, by your writing style....
- Mike
- Louisville, KY

MWB - The root of all this stems from a simple Question : Would "You" Torture A Terrorist To Save The Lives Of Your Family and Loved Ones ?

Not Talking About Bush/Obama.

Not Talking About US Military/CIA/FBI.

Not Talking About The Federal/State/Local Authorities.

MWB - I Am Talking About You : Just You {MWB}
An The Lives And Safety Of Your Family.

Again MWB Here Is The Question :
Would "You" {Dave} Torture A Terrorist To Save
The Lives Of Your Family and Loved Ones ?

MWB as for "Me" RHF that Answer is Simple
"YES" I Would & 'Yes' I Could & 'Yes' I Will [.]

because after all - i am only human and they are my family and loved ones ~ RHF

When you select someone and specifically plan and try to kill them....?

I tend to call it assassination. War is indiscriminate attacks on a military not targeting one single person.

She and the Congress already have it all settled, if it were illegal

- So, all those terrorists murderers have to do
- is ask God (Allah) for forgiveness?
- If that's all that's required, Hell must be a very
- lonely place.....
- If that's all that tortutrers have to do to be

MWB,

For the Islam-O-Fascist Terrorist and Torturers :
They would not ask God for Forgiveness.
However to 'Their' Belief System 'They' would Ask Allah for His Blessings for Killing and/or Torturing an Infidel.

- Aw, the paradox of religious-based justice....

Yeah that why the Islam-O-Fascist want the Subjugation of Non-Believers and Sharia Law.

The Muslim had Islamic Law Behind Him and the Non-Believer has No Legal Standing.

Hell-on-Earth -is- The Life of a Non-Believer

While MWB in the vast majority of Western Democracies base on Judeo-Christian Law both Belivers and Non-Belivers have Equal Legal Standing {Equality} Before The Law.

Why Even the Communist gave Lip Service

England has a large and concentrated Muslim population to deal with that easily dwarfs anything that exists in the USA or CDA. I would speculate that labeling Mr. Savage in this fashion only serves to contain and placate
smoldering and growing problem on their own soil and in neighboring Europe.

I'm in Canada and listen to the Savage show on KFAB 1110 AM for no more than 20" at a time. A lot he has to say is off the wall and the man clearly has little or no respect for his audience. However there is a thread of truth to be found in some of his rants. The news media is more concerned about a H1M1 flu epidemic that hasn't really killed anymore people than an ordinary flu -- yet chooses to downplay or ignore the effect of criminals, weapons and drugs being smuggled north into the US from Mexico and the countless lives jeopardized by these activities. Governments around the world make nice with the Saudis and their Muslim friends to ensure an uninterrupted flow of oil, while numerous wealthy Saudi families continue to fund various terrorist interests without consequence.

Mr. Savage is largely the architect of his own grief. Sadly, the really important stuff he occasionally brings to light gets quickly covered back up again by the garbage he spews on air.

Trouble is I support the free speech of Michael Savage, Ann Colter,

As I said before I was born in Georgia in the 20's. When I was 5 years old My mother used to leave me with Granny and Gramps when she went to work bottling bathtub gin at the local speakeasy. Me and Gramps had a game we played when Granny went to the market. All I had to do was poopy in a bowl for Gramps and he gave me a shiny penny!! Gramps said he was magic, he could change it into choclate ice-cream and he put in in the icebox and it must have worked because after about an hour, he took it out and ate it greedily. Magic ice-cream was our secret, he told me never to tell Granny and I didn't. I can keep a secret.

I was pure when I had my first niggra men. My mother used to spread my legs once a week and put her finger in to see if she could feel my cherry. I couldn't figure why she had to do it so often but I heard her mumbling something about "old letchers" and my Daddy and Uncles names would always come up. I never knew why. Juvon and Fidel were farmhands at the old Donniger property. They used to fuck me at the same time. They could shoot off at the same time and I could take 2 dicks up my ass or in my mouth. Either way was heaven! Juvon used to say "Dis be sumb muthafucka fine pussa n acehole" It's so funny the way they talk.

Like most everyone we had hard times in the 30's We were always short on money but Scott's father came up with a plan. We cut a 12 by12 hole in a closet and I would lock myself in the closet with my bare ass up against the hole. My husband brought men home from the speakeasy after they were all liquored up on bathtub gin and they sampled my tail 10 minutes for $3.00. That was a lot of money at the time and my husband said it was allright because the Reverend Stewart was a regular customer. He was so much different than he was in church. He always pulled down his pants and told me to get ready to be baptized. He always yelled out "Holy Mother of God" when he shot his nuts. Church was interesting from that time on.

Stay tuned for part 3.

I work as a professional a office, engineering lab, and production floor environment in electronics manufacturing. I look the part with a typical middle age guy short haircut. I meet customers, vendors, and subcontractors so I'm expected to keep up a nice looking dress casual appearance. I normally do not wear a suit or tie. This is after all California.

Although many people do, I never went for the greasy kid's stuff as a personal preference.

Pelosi said she was briefed about what they were thinking about doing but was not allowed to present any questions and was told there would be another briefing before any of the techniques were actually used.
If Pelosi had revealed the conversations she could have been tried for treason. I don't think Pelosi is all that strong.

My local congresscritter, McDermott, is fighting or has fought the good fight for revealing a cell phone conversation some one said they had

I'd hate to be on a squad with you if you didn't aim your weapon before firing. Are you not in that moment you pull your rifle's trigger targeting one single person?

The Brit hack/spokes-hole lumped Savage in with people that incite over 600,000,000 jobs lost. No rise in jobs, no hits, no bases, no runs.

Obama has saved zero jobs, but he has been costing us plenty of jobs, every time he over steps the constitution and beats up on industry and investors, because that drives money away from the Obama economy.

Geitner was just today saying that they fixed thing so new capital could come into the markets, who in their right mind would put money where Obama could do to you what he did to GM investors with capital in this market. They should have pulled out when Obama took office, they'd be way ahead of the game.

Absolutely. Our Constitution guarantees freedom of speech and freedom of expression equally to Rush Limbaugh, Dr. Laura, Reverend Wright, Lyndon LaRouche and everyone else. This of course includes the right of others to disagree and to state that they do disagree.

Not totally accurate. Though most of war is indeed indiscriminate, there are very often specific missions in which there is a specific and known target, such as a high ranking officer.

Too bad it's a lesson learned too late for her. These clowns try to outdo each other with Crystal Cathedrals and Heritage USA theme parks and all sorts of bullshit. I'm a little rusty with my Bible but I suspect that the focus was meant to be more on people than accumulating items.

If a technique doesn't work and you still carry through with it then it is torture. Anyone undergoing physical pain will say anything to get it to stop; it doesn't work and is torture.

Or the rights of me to not listen tot hem. Its a pity the UK or Australia (where I live btw) can't guarantee those rights. Your Eduardo - The therapy is working! You're almost cured!

"What might have worked prior to the recession has lost any hope of success now; the potential of new models of receivers in an economy where people have all reduced discretionary spending is nil. AM HD is and was a dreadful idea, and the best way to discover this is to buy an HD car radio and listen. To say it is annoying is an understatement. I had a belief in HD on FM. But there are no radios anywhere at retail, and scant few on the web. What could have worked were the economy robust will be like AM stereo... too late to meet market needs. In a few years, stations will have developed robust new alternative delivery options, and HD won't be one of them. Like a relationship gone bad, it's hard to admit when something is over. I have pretty much decided that HD is not even worth the discussion time any more... with an exception being to hope that the 10 db increase in digital power on FM not be approved."

I knew a guy, a friend's brother, whose wife joined up one of those really out there churches, where the preacher made up all kinds of rules all on his own, such has cats were satanic, all solid black dogs were too, women had to wear skirts and dresses, only certain kinds and colors of makeup, and jewelry was a no-no too. She nagged and nagged him to come with her on Sundays, and eventually he got sucked into it too. At this point, I distanced myself, as I couldn't keep from offending him constantly. After about a year, he began having an affair with a friend of his wife's, the one who got her into the church. They were pretty blatant about it, and after about six months, someone calls his wife, and blabs on him. Amazingly, he talks her into thinking it's a joke. The woman denied it. Somehow, the wife still had no idea what was going on.
He has to travel all over Ohio, Mich, Indiana, and the Chicago area too, so it was easy for them to get together discreetly, but most of the time, they were in a hotel on one of the major roads here. His customized candy apple Mustang stuck out like a searchlight parked in front of the place. But his wife never knew, until one Sunday. The preacher did a sermon about the sanctity of marriage and monogamy, etc, and at the end, he suddenly points to the other woman, and yells, "And Marge XXXXXXX, you are a sinner! You're having an affair with Mike XXXXXXXX, and you both should be ashamed of yourselves!!" Needless to say, all "heck" broke loose, and Marge, Mike, and the wife bailed out and ran. Mike and his wife are still together, they went to counseling for a long time. All three of them quit that church and went back to being sometime catholics. There wasn't any point in staying, as they were pretty much shunned. Mike's wife was pissed that "nobody told her", but she seems to forget, someone did. What really pissed her off was that it was blabbed in public, in front of everyone, and she was right to feel that way.

A couple of years ago, the preacher got served with not one, but two paternity suits. Of course, he denied, denied, denied they were were his kids. Both women were members of the church, of course, and had seen the preacher for "counseling" about the times they got pregnant. The members were calling them and making threats, vandalizing cars, etc. And of course, both kids were his. I was shocked when the membership tossed him out with a unanimous vote, as a couple other local preachers were allowed to stay and have "counseling". But he and his family left, and he ended up down in Ky or Tenn someplace last I heard, and has another church going. People never learn!

Last I heard, around SWLFest, he was in the hospital with heart trouble.
Anyone hear how he's doing?

RHF,

Yes, I'd torture to save my own family. But, I'd be committing a crime and would expect to face prosecution. It would be worth it to save my family, but I know I'd be committing a crime.

So? You've already been busted for smoking pot with your students and also once claimed to have a PhD.

After that, what's one more crime, dufus?

And, as always, don't let your children attend Louisville Technical Institute. They've hired at least one dufus who once claimed to have a PhD, and who knows, there may be more dufi there.

Thiessen's LA Tower Canard

We will not know for sure how much garbage or non-garbage the CIA gleaned from torturing captives until a Truth Commission sorts it all out, but we do have a great deal of evidence that torturing KSM was, pace Thiessen, not responsible for foiling the LA Tower plot. As Tim Noah notes, there is a matter of chronology:

In a White House press briefing, Bush's counterterrorism chief, Frances Fragos Townsend, told reporters that the cell leader was arrested in February 2002, and "at that point, the other members of the cell" (later arrested) "believed that the West Coast plot has been canceled, was not going forward" [italics mine]. A subsequent fact sheet released by the Bush White House states, "In 2002, we broke up [italics mine] a plot by KSM to hijack an airplane and fly it into the tallest building on the West Coast." These two statements make clear that however far the plot to attack the Library Tower ever gotï¿½an unnamed senior FBI official would later tell the Los Angeles Times that Bush's characterization of it as a "disrupted plot" was "ludicrous"ï¿½that plot was foiled in 2002. But Sheikh Mohammed wasn't captured until March 2003.

2629. From Clear Channel-owned Inside Radio - IBOC is a disaster!

"IBOC is yet another disaster. As people go out the door by the hundreds, the higher electric bills continue to run IBOC transmission systems that a teeny audience receives, why bother. Let’s face it, in this economy, buying an IBOC radio is a luxury. That doesn’t even take into account the lack of programming running on that wasted power. Being an engineer, I watched our power bills nearly double at the transmitter sites due to the extra air conditioning and the great analog transmitter suddenly becoming a world class heater running in hybrid mode... Max Turner is a former regional engineering manager for Susquehanna Radio. The views expressed are his own. Reach Max at mturn...@indy.rr.com."

http://www.insideradio.com/pdheadlines.asp?phid=563937&PT=Today%27s+Top+Stories

Yup, Eduardo is spot-on with his assessmant of IBOC. Good-luck with that 10db power increase - stations will not be able to afford double electrical bills, and total replacements of tranmission systems. All of this only to line the pockets of iBiquity. HD radios have never sold, and stations are turning off IBOC. Good going, Bob Struble - another disaster, after your disaster at Westinghouse. Do you think any other companies will hire you as CEO? Doubtful. Your legacy will be the biggest scam ever fobbled onto radio, and one of the biggest tech disasters in history! Is your staff still threatening stations to convert? Signs of a disreputable, desperate company. SiPort lied about its low power chip of 110mW, becasue that is in HD Radio Playback, not live HD Radio. Samsung's chip is still a power-hog, as is your shitty boat-anchor KRI armband paper weight. Doesn't Clear Channel own Inside Radio? LOL!

Torture is torture. Do you think, well that is useless thing to ask....would you like to be tortured? It's a quick way to get to the truth. According to you.

Riiighhhtttt, and I believe something that is in some blog. Sure, not in the NY Times, Washington Post, etc.

What a drooling whack job.

Would you like to be tortured? When has the law ever allowed torture? Remember all the witches that were caught by torture?

Yeah, right, the Germans would have gotten off if they had used independent contractors.

This recession started under Bush. All last year, every month, we were in a recession. That's government figures, Bush announced his failure after the election. Bush tried to keep the lid on but the monthly numbers were discouraging.

Now why should you believe me? Who is in the White House trying to sort out Bush's mess?

Face it, your spending and wars darn near destroyed this great nation.

Remember, your great break through was taking about lowering taxes.
You never talked about deficits. How does it feel to fail?

Riiighhhtttt, and I believe something that is in some blog. Sure, not in the NY Times, Washington Post, etc.

What a drooling whack job.

Would you like to be tortured? When has the law ever allowed torture? Remember all the witches that were caught by torture?

KC - OK in what Age are you living that you continually refer to "Witches" Burning and

over 600,000,000 jobs lost. No rise in jobs, no hits, no bases, no runs.

Obama has saved zero jobs, but he has been costing us plenty of jobs, every time Obama over steps the constitution and beats up on industry and investors, because that drives money away from the Obama economy.

Geitner was just today saying that they fixed things so new capital could come into the markets, who in their right mind would put money where Obama can do to you what Obama just did to GM investors who have their capital in this Obama market. They should have pulled out when Obama took office, they'd be way ahead of the game right now. Those GM investors are standing there with nothing they lost it all , if they had run from the market the day Obama won the election they would be the big winners today.

I hate to say it but the GM investors didn't believe what Others and I were saying, Obama is a Socialist and Obama is after EVERYONES capital. He is just waiting for a chance to get his foot in the door, when that happens he will TAKE YOUR CAPITAL TOO.

Surely you see the typo, ~6million is all over the news and I typed a few extra 00 by mistake, but then no one ever makes typing errors here.

These typo flames are really tiresome I see people attacking others for simple things. I watch them all slide by W/O commenting on obvious errors because it's not relevant to the subject.

Usually these 'people' are Convicted of a Felony Crime in their own Home Country or on a Known Terrorist Watch List.
* Amy Winehouse [Drug Use UK] Banned from the USA
* Martha Steward [Lying Under Oath USA] Banned from the UK
* Real IRA [Terrorist Bombings UK] Banned from the USA
* Tariq Ramadan [Muslim Brotherhood] Banned from the USA
* Palestinian Islamic Jihad Members Banned from Canada

So One Must Ask What Felony Crime Has Michael Savage Been Convicted Of . . .

You can quit worrying about abortion. What you think no longer matters. Wiccans have rediscovered the ancient craft of witches, and are again offering herbal abortions.

No appointment, no protestor line, no doctor bill, no parental consent, no adoption sermon, and no problem with fist, second, or third trimester. Turns out there's a reason "Bachelor Button" is so named, or why Blessed Thistle was blessed, and how Motherwort warded off motherhood.

There's no way the state can control abortion any more.

Something as simple as a Cold Cell with the

Seeing another Individual {Actor} Dragged down the Hall into a Room and scream for several minutes or hours and being dragged

Goodbye, GOP

BY JOY-ANN REID

Once upon a time, there were two relevant, functioning, political parties.

The Democrats were the party of Tip Oï¿½Neill, Pabst Blue Ribbon, union guys and the ï¿½rainbow coalition.

Republicans were the party of bosses who drink cognac, and Alex P. Keaton.

The parties traded the White House five times between 1960 and 2000, with the four Democrats and five Republicans who won the presidency emerging from mixed geographies:

Ronald Reagan was once governor of ï¿½liberal California, Jimmy Carter, of conservative Georgia.

There were Rockefeller Republicans across the Northeast, and ï¿½Reagan Democrats in Detroit.

There was nothing particularly disturbing about either party (if you discount Richard Nixon and Iran-Contra,) though both parties had their share of scandals.

You knew at the end of the day that Democrats fought poverty and Republicans fought taxes.

It was all so simple then.

Today, Iï¿½m not sure there are two functioning parties.

Democrats, who dominated Congress for most of the last 60 years, do so again, having survived the ï¿½Republican Revolution of 1994 that created Republican majorities in the House and Senate for the first time since Eisenhower, and gave Republicans total control of the federal government (thanks to the Supreme Court) in 2000.

Since then, something has gone terribly wrong with the GOP.

For starters, the party seems completely stumped by a popular president, Barack Obama.

Meanwhile, itï¿½s scrambling to both defend and distance itself from the failed presidency of George W. Bush.

The economic mugging the Bush administration and Republican-controlled Congress perpetrated on the country for six years was bad enough;

Mr. Bush was simply signing every bill his party put in front of him.

As for tax cuts that made about 400,000 very rich Americans even richer, and the total economic collapse on the way out the door?

As Dick Cheney would say, stuff happens.

And then there are the Bush-era national security ideas that, while they had the complicity of some weak-kneed Democrats after 9/11, are now Official Property of the GOP.

Some of these ideas are so radical, theyï¿½re not recognizable as American:

the all-powerful ï¿½unitary executive, indefinite detention without trial, ï¿½sneak and peek searches of private homes, pre-emptive war, warrantless wiretapping, and worst of all, torture specifically, the kind of torture waterboarding made infamous by the Spanish Inquisition, the Khmer Rouge, Maoist China and the Japanese and Gestapo during World War II.

Add them to the list of Things Republicans are Defending, while simultaneously declaring a 3-percent tax increase on the rich to be ï¿½tyranny.

Even as they are haunted by the ghost of George W. Bush, Republicans keep scaring up the ghost of Richard Nixon, as when former Secretary of State Condoleezza Rice told a group of Stanford students last week that when the president authorizes waterboarding, itï¿½s not torture.

Meanwhile, a raft of memos detailing torture techniques with cold precision are in a sense, Bushï¿½s ï¿½Pentagon papers.

Add to this baggage the outsized importance of the religious right, and carnival barkers like Sean Hannity, Glenn Beck and ï¿½the boss himself, Rush Limbaugh.

The requirement that elected Republicans swear fealty to both has only accelerated the GOPï¿½s transformation into a rump party with narrow appeal and virtually no coherent national message.

And with the partyï¿½s political talent bench consisting of Sarah Palin, folksy-talkinï¿½ Louisiana Gov. Bobby Jindal, Britney Spears concert fan Eric Cantor, bumbling RNC chair Michael Steele, and lately, Jeb Bush whose last name is BUSH, itï¿½s no wonder the religious muckrakers and right-wing shock jocks have the floor.

Demographically, the GOP has all but disappeared from the West Coast and the Northeast, and moderate Republicans are becoming an endangered species.

After Sen. Arlen Specterï¿½s convenient exit, there are exactly two Republican senators from the entire northeastern region both from Maine.

Just one in five Americans calls himself or herself a Republican, according to the latest Washington Post/ABC and NBC News/Wall Street Journal polls, and the party is practically walled into the South and Appalachia.

Republicans have long since lost black voters, and theyï¿½ve also spurned the fastest-growing ethnic group: Hispanics, due to a strange obsession with erecting a Berlin Wall across the Mexican border.

The 219 Republicans in the current Congress include zero blacks, five Hispanics (four of whom are from Florida) and one Jew: Rep. Eric Cantor of Virginia.

And whatï¿½s the GOPï¿½s answer to this tale of unending woe?

Tea parties.

Hurray.

Harry

I do applaud Eduardo for finally telling the truth, after so many lies, but his credibility still remains almost zero. Interesting, what he said almost mirrored the article today from Inside Radio. Still, another article today from Radio World on Electric Programming Guides for HD Radio - what a total joke and complete waste of money. Just more things to complicate HD radios, and make them even more expensive. Makes one grateful for simple $10 analog radios like the Sony ICF-S10MK2.

Amen. It's amazing to me that so much of what is now called "political

So Freedom-of-Speech ! Is NOT Freedom-of-Speech ?

- You can say anything you want.
- You just don't want to be called on it.

But "I" and 'others' have the Right to Rebut
You or simply Walk Away and Disassociate Ourselves from You.

Lets get one thing straight.... the FCC has plenty of real engineers. They're the working stiffs in that organization. It was all the Lawyers and political appointees on the Commission that squelched the engineers' objections to such lousy ideas as BPL, etc. At risk of being fired I would probably keep my mouth shut, too.

I'm hoping the new commissioners will turn this terrible work environment around.

That, AM IBOC, and it would be nice if they would actually enforce Part 15 for things like CFL's, cable and ADSL modems, computer power supplies, plasma and LCD televisions, etc.

I'm trying to understand the statement "SiPort lied about its low power chip of 110mW, becasue that is in HD Radio Playback, not live HD Radio."

What is the difference between a playback and live HD? Maybe you are saying the playback signal is perfect and a live signal is not so more processing is required causing the chip to draw more power?

Maybe you could point to some technical links about this.

It kind of puts me in mind of the federal law passed in the 70's that required you to have a tax stamp to use marijuana, meanwhile a federal law already existed making it illegal to use marijuana.

The whole hypocritical abortion issue is only another volley of the same crap that republican'ts have been using for years to keep their lemmings in line.

If the republican'ts had any REAL issues to stand on, they would have resolved the abortion issue when they had their overwhelming control of the house, senate and whitehouse. But they didn't, to keep their "killer-christain" base.

Most of the drug laws are insane anyway. The people who write them, and pass them never seemed to have read about prohibition, the original insane drug law. It gave rise to the Mafia, making many people rich crooks. Some people will always get high, it can't be stopped, so you might as well tax it, and insure purity/quality.

I know someone who has smoked pot daily for nearly 40 years. He's been married to his high school girlfriend for almost 35 years (who smokes it almost as much as he does), has 3 kids, and has had the same job for 30 years. His health is pretty much perfect too.

Pot sure has messed up his life....;)

The fact that you take so many words to try an prove that the Republicans and Conservatives are irrelevant just proves their relevancy and the need for them in a two party system.

Oh that's right you only want a One Party System {Control} and a President-for-Life.

Soldering to them takes a light touch, and a low watt iron. I use a Wahl rechargeable for that sort of thing.

The traces lift easily, so you have to have your iron clean, your wires tinned and be able to make one smooth motion to get it done.

Conductive epoxy isn't for this kind of application. Usually resistance is too high for practical power uses. However, once the wires are back on the traces and the system appears to be working, a little epoxy, conductive or otherwise, makes a fine strain relief.

Doing this kind of work is much like repairing the electrostatic tweeters in european desk sets. In that case, tabs are held onto the back of the foil element with a clear conductive lacquer. The kind you find in auto parts sections of Walgreens, or at Auto Zone for repairing the conductive strips on an automobile rear window defogger. If your solar cell is similarly constructed, you may have a couple of repairs to make. One is the wire to the trace. The other...the trace to the element.

Inspect carefully before you begin.

The 1811 or 1812 New Madrid Earthquake is one of the largest successions of earthquakes, including the most intensive ever indirectly inferred (not recorded) in the contiguous United States, beginning with an initial pair of very large earthquakes on December 16, 1811, plus aftershocks and other large related quakes separated by a succession of smaller aftershock quakes with the largest event classified as a Mega-quake of greater than 8.0 on the Richter scale occurring on February 7, 1812. It got its name from its primary location in the New Madrid Seismic Zone, near New Madrid, Louisiana Territory (now Missouri), where a stretch of land five miles (8 km) deep spanning from Arkansas to Illinois shifted and slipped. The fault is believed to generate a slip every 250-400 years.[1]

This earthquake was preceded by three other major quakes: two on December 16, 1811, and one on January 23, 1812. These earthquakes destroyed approximately half the town of New Madrid. There were also numerous aftershocks in the area for the rest of that winter with research indicating a series of some 2,000 earthquakes overall that affected the lands of what would become eight of today's heartland states of the United States.[1]

There are estimates that the earthquakes were felt strongly over roughly 130,000 square kilometers (50,000 square miles), and moderately across nearly 3 million square kilometers (1 million square miles). The historic 1906 San Francisco earthquake, by comparison, was felt moderately over roughly 16,000 square kilometers (6,000 square miles).

Hey frankie boy - If you're referring to me, I do own an HD radio. A Sony XDR-S3HD which I purchased at a "clearance sale" for $49 (regularly $200 approx.) because they couldn't unload them fast enough. No matter how you slice it HD radio is a disaster as consumers are rightly showing.

I wasn't referring to you at all. I wanted to point out to RHF that the quote from David Eduardo did exist and was posted on another forum.

The Eduardo quote was inconsistent with David Eduardo's previous statements on the quality of HD radio audio.

I'm glad you found a HD radio deal you're happy with, although I think that's about triple what a HD radio is worth.

CIA Says Pelosi Was Briefed on Use of 'Enhanced Interrogations'

Intelligence officials released documents this evening saying that House Speaker Nancy Pelosi (D-Calif.) was briefed in September 2002 about the use of harsh interrogation tactics against al-Qaeda prisoners, seemingly contradicting her repeated statements over the past 18 months that she was never told that these techniques were actually being used.

In a 10-page memo outlining an almost seven-year history of classified briefings, intelligence officials said that Pelosi and then-Rep. Porter Goss (R-Fla.) were the first two members of Congress ever briefed on the interrogation tactics. Then the ranking member and chairman of the House Intelligence Committee, respectively, Pelosi and Goss were briefed Sept. 4, 2002, one week before the first anniversary of the 9/11 terrorist attacks.

The memo, issued by the Director of National Intelligence and the Central Intelligence Agency to Capitol Hill, notes the Pelosi-Goss briefing covered "EITs including the use of EITs on Abu Zubaydah." EIT is an acronym for enhanced interrogation technique. Zubaydah was one of the earliest valuable al-Qaeda members captured and the first to have the controversial tactic known as water boarding used against him.

The issue of what Pelosi knew and when she knew it has become a matter of heated debate on Capitol Hill. Republicans have accused her of knowing for many years precisely the techniques CIA agents were using in interrogations, and only protesting the tactics when they became public and liberal antiwar activists protested.

In a carefully worded statement, Pelosi's office said today that she had never been briefed about the use of waterboarding, only that it had been approved by Bush administration lawyers as a legal technique to use in interrogations.

"As this document shows, the Speaker was briefed only once, in September 2002. The briefers described these techniques, said they were legal, but said that waterboarding had not yet been used," said Brendan Daly, Pelosi's spokesman.

Pelosi's statement did not address whether she was informed that other harsh techniques were already in use during the Zubaydah interrogations.

In December 2007 the Washington Post reported that leaders of the House and Senate intelligence committees had been briefed in the fall of 2002 about waterboarding -- which simulates drowning -- and other techniques, and that no congressional leaders protested its use. At the time Pelosi said she was not told that waterboarding was being used, a position she stood by repeatedly last month when the Bush-era Justice Department legal documents justifying the interrogation tactics were released by Attorney General Eric Holder.

The new memo shows that intelligence officials were willing to share the information about waterboarding with only a sharply closed group of people. Three years after the initial Pelosi-Goss briefing, Bush officials still limited interrogation technique briefings to just the chairman and ranking member of the House and Senate intelligence committees, the so-called Gang of Four in the intelligence world.

In October 2005, CIA officials began briefing other congressional leaders with oversight of the intelligence community, including top appropriators who provided the agency its annual funding. Sen. John McCain (R-Ariz.), a prisoner-of-war in Vietnam and an opponent of torture techniques, was also read into the program at that time even though he did not hold a special committee position overseeing the intelligence community.

A bipartisan collection of lawmakers have criticized the practice of limiting information to just the "Gang of Four", who were expressly forbidden from talking about the information from other colleagues, including fellow members of the intelligence committees. Pelosi and others are considering reforms that would assure a more open process for all committee members.

Whichever party or "wing" can become fascists through the practice of intolerance of other points of view, exercising authoritarianism, and causing a part of the population through training or propaganda means to persecute the remaining citizens that don't go along with the chosen one's policies.

From Eduardo:

What might have worked prior to the recession has lost any hope of success
now; the potential of new models of receivers in an economy where people have all reduced discretionary spending is nil.

AM HD is and was a dreadful idea, and the best way to discover this is to buy an HD car radio and listen. To say it is annoying is an understatement.

I had a belief in HD on FM. But there are no radios anywhere at retail, and scant few on the web. What could have worked were the economy robust will be like AM stereo... too late to meet market needs. In a few years, stations
will have developed robust new alternative delivery options, and HD won't be one of them.

Like a relationship gone bad, it's hard to admit when something is over. I have pretty much decided that HD is not even worth the discussion time any more... with an exception being to hope that the 10 db increase in digital power on FM not be approved.

would be pretty funny to take the only tool the republican't party has over it's lemmings, childish name calling.

Ru$h LimpBalls would be out-a a job!

Without FUD for the republican't party to use to control it's lemmings, they will be forced to come up with real ideas

The AMers (and low-power FMers) would have been much better off pushing for all licensees to get a digital channel in a dedicated (non-mediumwave) digital band, where all the nighttime interference would be nonexistent, where AMs and FMs and low-power stations and high-power stations would have started over on an equal footing and with absolutely perfect coverage of their markets.

But they were sold a bill of goods by the big chains, who wanted to preserve the superiority of the facilities they had paid many millions for -- superiority over the small station owner.

IBOC preserves the inferior -- some might say hopelessly, impossibly inferior -- status of the small broadcaster. And that was its primary purpose all along. In short, these small businessmen have been totally snookered and hoodwinked.

Like the DX listener and the ordinary listener, they've been unfairly cheated out of digital technology's promise and the excellent service to the community they could have had with a dedicated digital band.

With every good wish,

Kevin.

Holy SHEET!! For that price, I would be able to deliver it PERSONALLY, including the plane trip stateside and back. I've seen these go for as much as $800 in the past, but never anything like that..

If it is indeed Strom, according to Wikipedia he was released from prison on September 3, 2008.

Malkin, in her usual fashion, has failed to mention some recent items regarding the Fairness Doctrine that she and other misinformed Conservatives have harped on for so long.

From:
http://query.nytimes.com/gst/fullpage.html?res=950DE7D9143EF932A25751C0A96F948260

February 11, 1989 - A Federal Court has upheld the repeal of the Fairness Doctrine by the Federal Communications Commission.

and from:
http://www.foxnews.com/politics/first100days/2009/02/18/white-house-opposes-fairness-doctr ine/

Wednesday, February 18, 2009 - President Obama opposes any move to bring back the so-called Fairness Doctrine, a spokesman told FOXNews.com Wednesday.

Why does Malkin attempt to revive a non-relevant issue? She makes it sound like the Fairness Doctrine will be re-instated next week. Is it being done just to stir up doo-doo? I think it is.

THE ABOVE IS ALL LIBERAL FASCIST PROPAGANDA LIES

The Neo-Commie unFairness Doctrine is very much alive! http://www.unfairair.org

"Congress shall make no law respecting an establishment of religion, or prohibiting the free exercise thereof; or abridging the freedom of speech, or of the press..."

Government censorship has many disguises. By whatever name – “Equal Time,” “Localism,” or the Orwellian “Fairness Doctrine,” – it is censorship and un-American. Sadly, in the wake of the 2008 elections and FCC changes, powerful politicians in Washington have become emboldened to press for direct or creeping censorship of news and talk radio.

DO NOT BECOME COMPLACENT - REJECT THE 0baMa0 LIBERAL FASCIST
PROPAGANDA LIES

On May 7, Obama’s FCC Chairman convened the first “Diversity Committee” meeting. A dozen left-wing advocacy groups and politically correct corporate flunkies are about to make federal policy on who will be allowed to own a radio station. This is the first shot. We can either duck and cover or we can fight back.

What Obama is doing is now in plain sight. FCC Chairman Copps:

“The sad truth is that the diversity of this great nation is not reflected in the ownership of its media and telecommunications facilities. The time has come to chart a new course, to roll up our sleeves and get to work to craft sustainable solutions.”

Translation: If Obama can take over America’s largest banks, insurance companies and auto makers, he can regulate a way to take over America’s free media. And they are coming after radio first. We need to see the specific tactic Obama will use through his FCC and majority in Congress before we can target fire to stop it. But in the meantime, we’ve got to keep recruiting an online army.

0baMa0 will purposefully legislate the radio industry into bankruptcy. As with the banks, insurance companies and automobile companies, they will then takeover every radio station in the U.S. Then they will set their sites on the internet. Kiss your Free Speech goodbye! It will be Liberal Fascist Propaganda 24 hours a day 7 days a week on every media outlet everywhere.

FREEDOM ISN'T FREE - FIGHT BACK >>> http://www.unfairair.org

The airwaves belong to everyone and cannot be used to create a poisonous political atmosphere. Licensees have an obligation to serve the public interest.

Newspapers can print whatever they like, because anybody can start a newspaper. Spectrum is a finite commodity. They cannot be coralled and used to further political objectives of the capital class to the detriment of everyone else.

I expect we are going to get the "fairness doctrine" shoved down out throats in the near future but it will be called something else.

I expect the left's continued attack on free speech rights to continue.
The "progressive" types will "craft" another bill by another name to silence speech they don't like.

Re: THE ABOVE IS ALL LIBERAL FASCIST PROPAGANDA LIES

Well, Poon Cheeks, if you want to insist that the earth is flat, then have at it. But read the following

http://blogcritics.org/politics/article/fairness-the-fake-debate/

Someone needs to explain why it is that CONSERVATIVES CONTINUE TO INSIST that liberals want to reinstitute the FCC’s 1949 Fairness Doctrine. While it is true that the old regulation is brought up from time to time, IT HAS NO TRACTION IN EITHER THE HOUSE OR SENATE. The administration is opposed to it. THE SUPREME COURT WOULD RULE AGAINST IT. Still, conservative talk radio continues to chant about the "Hush Rush Bill" as if it were a real threat that has real backing. It isn’t, it doesn’t, and it’s not going to happen.

Nor will the sky fall.

Obama's opposition to re-instating the FD is well....legendary.

Then let the public decide what is in their best interest. Or would you prefer a liberal administration, or any administration for that matter, supersede the will of THE PEOPLE and do it for them?

Go ahead, keep pushing us around. GO AHEAD PUNK!

IOW, you don't give a shit about the will of THE PEOPLE of the United States.

The advertisers are withdrawing commercials, which is cutting the incomes of newspapers, TV, and radio. Sure they can put ads on the web, but who bothers looking at them? If you wanna buy something, and actually have some money, you comparison shop.

Free speech has long been drowned out by paid for corporate speech. It will be nice to see what citizens, like yourself, have to say for a change.

Wow, that's crazy. I gotta call a friend of mine and tell him he should have put his new looking one on ebay instead of selling it at a hamfest last year!

I really don't get the price at all, I wasn't really impressed with it the couple of times I played with one. I would pass on one at one third that price.

The SOONER the Fairness Doctrine is reinstated, the BETTER!

As I pointed out HERE:

On Mon, 9 Feb 2009 22:03:21 -0500,
"Jon Young"/"IBen Getiner" again PARROTED more hateful and ignorant CRAP from the RRR Cult --

> Christian broadcasters...

TRANSLATION: RRR Cultic broadcasters. Who INSULT Christianity every time they claim to be Christian.

TRANLATION: What they REALLY fear is that they might be in the position of having their agendas of hateful bigotry REFUTED and BALANCED by the airing of equal-time broadcasting by sensible, compassionate, and fair-minded egalitarian who would EXPOSE the ignorance, vacuousness, speciousness, and loathsomeness of their hate-agendas.

> They also worry that proposed hate crimes laws -- such as the BZzzttttt!!! ENDA has absolutely NOTHING to do with the proposed laws providing greater penalties for the commission of hate-crimes.

(Thus, once AGAIN we see "IBen's" abject ignorance as demonstrated by his propensity to PARROT mindless SWILL generated by the hate-sites of the RRR Cult.)

The SOLE purpose of ENDA is to prevent any and all future attempts to DISCRIMINATE against people in the workplace (e.g., conditions, pay, hiring, and firing) of any person on the specious basis of the TRIVIALITY of his/her sexual orientation.
Their opposition to the act is an overt PROMOTION of idiotic and uncalled-for discrimination, and thus serves as clear PROOF of the RRR Cultists' hatefulness. They have NOTHING to gain by seeing discrimination ENDED!

CLUE, Mindless Loser -- FAIRNESS *cannot be FORCED upon anyone any more than any FREEDOM can

For public airwaves to be ABUSED to give ONE-sided and BIGOTED views -- as FAUX News has been doing. is UNfair.

ALL media should be required to present ALL sides of issues, equally. And IF presented in a biased fashion, the opposite view should be presented with EQUAL vigor.

VIVA the FAIRNESS Doctrine!!

That is precisely why broadcast media needs to be more down the middle.
People cannot make informed decisions if all they hear is propaganda.

When I was a kid, EVERY radio station did regular newscasts, (at least one an hour).

Fox News is a cable channel. The big scary fairness doctrine only applies to wireless broadcast, e.g. radio and TV stations..

If so, it needs to be modified to INCLUDE the other channels.

Well, I think that seller's overly eloquent description reeled in a few fish. If you search for Grundig 650's, you seldom see one going for over $600 these days. It's an interesting radio with rich sound for a tabletop, and that servo controlled preselector makes for some serious eye candy, but overall I'd say the performance is fairly ho-hum.

I think I'll file that seller's description away for a year or so, then use it for selling mine. The seller is probably laughing his way to the bank!

"Poisonous" as defined by whom? Little Liberal Fascist Diktators in your local Hitlery "It Takes A Village"?
There is no better way to determine satisfaction of a licensees obligation of serving the public than the Public actually listening.
Through which the radio station gains its Market Share Rating and allows the station to make enough advertizing revenue to continue opperating. If Free Market Capitalism (you and me consuming radio product) is not allowed to operate than WHO/WHAT will decide which stations continue to operate? A Politician? An 0baMa0 appointed Liberal Fascist/Neo-Communist? Kiss your freedom goodbye. And Dr.DaviD, you can kiss my ass!

It looks like he really hit the jackpot. I've hit some smaller "huh?"
type jackpots selling stuff on Ebay, but nothing like that. I bought a "dead" R71A a few years back, and had it going in about 20 minutes, all it was was a bad ground. I washed the top and bottom case halves in my dishwasher to get most of the smell of tobacco out of it (Didn't work, but helped, and made it look great), and took the front panel and washed it in some mild soap and water. When it was done, it looked great, and smelled tolerable. I touched up the alignment, and kept it for a few months, and then put it up when there were only a couple R71As up for auction, and only one had the FL44 filter it had in it, and sold it for almost $200 more than I paid for it. I made about a hundred on my Yaesu FRG-7700, when I sold it, and I used it for 2 years. The only thing I did was wash the case, and replace the volume pot, as it was crackling all the time. I cracked open the pot, and it was totally worn out, and a really junk pot besides.

I was bidding on a gun auction once, and it was totally out of control.
I could buy a new one, in the box, for almost $100 less than the two year old one up for auction. A few days later, I bought an even better looking gun of the exact same model, for over $200 less than the other one went for. When I bid on something, I know what it's worth, and go no higher than what I want to pay, sometimes I lose, sometimes I win, but I don't go nuts.

My best deal ever was a vacuum desoldering station, barely used, for $25! Including shipping. A new one goes for almost $300. I couldn't believe nobody else bid on it. It sure came in handy when I had to change about 40 caps out of an old Kenwood TS-850 I got super cheap.

Anybody was able to say anything they wanted before and after the Fairness Doctrine was repealed. The reason for the reinstatement is that with all the rich republican'ts owning all the media outlets, fat dumb sausage suckers (like Ru$h and Beck) spewing an acid bath of hate that is being presented as the only fact.

Without the Fairness Doctrine, your only hearing one side of the issue...

Is Ecuador the same as Haiti?

HCJB has dedicated most of its efforts to developing local evangelical stations, since SW was producing ever smaller results and local stations, particularly FM, are more effective.

2773. A question about shortwave reception...

Hello,

I was at the beach yesterday and enjoyed spectacular shortwave reception. When I got back home after that I tried to listen to shortwave in my house but I didn't have a very good time of it.

I was wondering if there is a way to listen to shortwave in your house. I have heard of something called an attic loop? Would that work well? Are those easy to install and are they fairly inexpensive?

Thanks!

Andrew.

Baloney, people reading this news group were not born yesterday. I remember the way things were before and after the "unfairness doctrine" was enforced. For some reason you got the left point of view and that was it. I could not stand listening to talk radio with the liberals in control as a right wringer calling in would get shouted down by the host. Basically people that called in got the same treatment from the hosts as the liberal assholes that spew their crap on Usenet do here today. The same old liberal lying crap said over and over like that will make it true. Well keep dreaming that the "unfairness doctrine" will make a comeback as it is the only chance you got to fool people into believing the liberal lie.

Maybe a "No Hate Speech Doctrine" Bill which would result in the only persons you would be able to say anything nasty about would be :

White Straight Males and Christians. Everyone else would be in a 'Protected Class' : Violators would be removed-banned from the Air-Waves and could be Fined a Years Salary and also get a Year in Jail. Say anything Negative about Disrespecting Prez Obama of the US Congress would also be a reason to remove-ban someone from the Air-Waves.

<snip unrelated biased opinion>

O yea?!

early in mass coommmunications, Talkshows and call-ins were rare but viewpoint programs were not. In radio and TV, there were people with timers to make sure different viewpoints were equally represented, at least by equality in time. Perhaps there were mistakes by not having a fully qualified guest making the response for one side or another but never-the-less, there WAS a response and the audience was not left with the impression that the host of the "show" was "the authority".

What we have today are groups of people who follow what they like to hear and believe as fact, most anything said by the program moderator. There is little if no confirmation of facts and the program host will let the audience conjecture bogus attitudes on a subject or person when the basis of the subject is truly unfounded.

With a fairness doctrine, no individual will loose any civil rights.
If you feel differently, please explain.

The only people I feel will loose (financially but not civilly) are the corporations who own all the media outlets. Their gain (by keeping the public in the dark) is simply your lose to make educated opinion or judgment.

That's not a kind (or grammatical) response to someone who just wants help with the hobby.

Andrew:

An outdoor antenna will always work better for you than an indoor one, because it is farther away from the radio noise generated by appliances and consumer electronics in the home, and it isn't subject to reduced signal strength due to the building itself.

Nevertheless, if an outside antenna is absolutely impossible, an attic antenna will often work better than the radio's built-in whip antenna indoors.

Antennas are a big subject, upon which many books have been written, but here is a brief article which should help you get started:

http://www.hamuniverse.com/shortwaveantenna.html

With best wishes,

Kevin, WB4AIO.

No there weren't. It was never enforced that rigidly. At best, persons with opposing viewpoints were given an open invitation to come in with their views, which rarely happened, and even when it did, it just provided an amusing program. Think Floyd Turbo on the old Tonight Show.

I'm plenty old enough to remember the days of the old Fairness Doctrine, and it NEVER applied to talk radio at all. It applied to stations that would give free air time to stump for a political candidate or cause, and (supposedly) required them to give free air time to an opposing opinion. As far as talkers, most of the ones I remember from my youth were conservatives like Ira Blue and Herb Jepko (well, they were conservatives at the time, nowadays, they'd be considered moderates). Liberal talkers, as today, were fairly scarce, and usually, like today, stuck on small (the one in Portland at the time, KKEY, was a 1KW daytimer) stations.

And of course the ones that think that a revived 'doctrine' would affect religious programming have a screw loose. All during the time of the doctrine, there was abundant religious programming. Most every station had some sort of religious programming on Sundays, and some programs like Garner Ted Armstrong that ran nightly. This along with most cities over 100,000 population having at least one dedicated Christian radio station. Not only are nearly all of those stations still on the air, and have been in many cases for over 50 years, but most cities have added additional AM, FM, LPFM and even television stations.

A revised doctrine MIGHT affect Fox News and MSNBC by requiring them to have actual opposing viewpoints up against the likes of Sean Hannity and Keith Olbermann, but I really doubt it. I suspect it would, as in the days of yore, apply only to campaigns and campaign issues.

That's what I assumed. I was just wondering if there was one that actually came from Venezuela.

With comrade Hugo always trying to get a bigger role on the world stage, I thought he might have gotten around to setting up an independent facility. Perhaps if oil prices rise.

Unfortunately, I can't really hope to catch those here. And even if I

Cable TV is exempt from most FCC content restrictions. A new Fairness Doctrine would only apply to over-the-air broadcasts via the publicly owned airwaves.

"CPB/NPR to Fit Square HD Peg Into Round Hole"

"First, National Public Radio (through the CPB) has already extensively studied this issue, more than anyone else in the industry, and the results are pretty unequivocal that increasing the power of a station's FM digital signal will adversely affect not only its own analog host-signal, but also those of neighboring stations. So much so, in fact, that the (first) study's coordinating engineer has admitted in other fora that an increase in HD sideband power levels is much more likely to do harm than good."

http://www.diymedia.net/archive/0409.htm#042909

NPR appears to be against the FM-HD power increase, but rumors are that NPR and iNiquity have come to a compromise. Currently, FM-HD jams adjacents, but this will probably trash analog FM. iNiquity's plan is to try and force digital adoption by trashing analog. Why the fuck isn't anyone stopping the FCC?

iNiquity's investors include just the larger broadcast chains - they purposefully made IBOC too expensive for the smaller broadcasters, and IBOC was designed to jam the smaller broadcasters off the dial. Yup, that's why iNiquity wanted to convert on the existing band. Other countries have tried converting to digital on new bands, but as in the UK, digital stations are shutting down and transitions has stalled. Very few buy radios anymore, and certainly not expensive digital radios. Governments are trying to force digital adoptions, but consumers have spoken.

A loop can be expensive. There are also build-your-own solutions that can be quite economical. It's all going to depend on your level of technical skill, and your willingness to expand your skills and technical understanding.

Your problems in at-home listening are based on the levels of noise generated by items in the house, as well as signal loss resulting from siding and other construction materials, ground and other clutter. The composite result of attenuated signal at the antenna, and higher noise levels from sources in the home make for some pretty suckular listening.

The best solution is an external antenna. More signal and less noise. A dramatic difference is possible.

Easiest would be a random wire through a 9:1 transformer to a well shielded and grounded coaxial transmission line to your radio.
This can be all the improvement you need. Easily deployed. Easily concealed, if that's an issue.

Loops are very good solutions. They can offer a level of noise immunity. A properly selected diameter can provide less directional reception at HF frequencies, making for simpler operation. That said, smaller loops tend to be of lower gain, requiring amplification to not only boost signal levels, but to overcome losses in the transmission line for better noise figures. Such loops, like the Wellbrooks, can run you a few hundred bucks just to get one in the building. You build one for less, but that will require some technical understanding of loops, transmission lines and the field of antennae in general.

Loops in the attic....not the best solution. Mostly because you're still in the building where noises are generated. Level of noise in your receiver is proportional to the proximity of the antenna to the source. Outdoors, away from the building is a dramatically better way to go.

You may be surprised where at the sources of your troublesome noise. Computers, routers, and printers, are horrid offenders, of course. But the rectifier bridges in audio amps (Crowns are notorious for this), HD tv sets (on or off), cable/U-verse boxes, noises on the A/C line, and even some ground legs can all be noise sources. Some, like rectifier bridges can be quieted with capacitors across rectifier junctions to soak up the switching transient. Others, more difficult. But there are always solutions to improve, if not eliminate some noises.

ARRL publishes a terrific book on antennae, antenna theory, and practical designs and construction tips.

And there are always sources, like this group, where the technical knowledge is available to help you track down and maim, if not kill, noise.

Dig in. Getting your hands working is a lot of fun.

Hello Slade:
I also used a 398 (Sangean 909 same innards) for a number of years together with sundry other portables and a Radio Shack DX 394. The 750 outperforms any other radio I own, mainly due to the use of a good outdoor antenna, although the DX 394 makes a good account of itself with this antenna, a Hustler 5BTV vertical, ground mounted. Really a Ham antenna, but exceptionally effective on SW. Your selection of the new antenna will amaze with the improvement in reception. My location is electrically very noisy, but the outdoor antenna made a huge improvement in reception.
Noise levels dropped dramatically and DX hunting became a real joy.

Sign in, go search for "grundig 650" and then look at the completed items. You'll see it.

Thanks for the good post, sw4ever. As you can probably tell, I'm rather new at this. I've had shortwave radios [off and on] ever since I was a kid in the early to mid 70s, but I never thought I could own significant equipment. I am really looking forward to the new antenna [having seven kids at home makes the extra 'scratch' for equipment rare]. I also own an Icom IC-r7000 [when I bought the Icom, I thought it would receive between 25 kHz through 2.0 GHz. Imagine my surprise!] I purchased a Diamond Discone antenna to go with it. Currently, I have the antenna about 20 feet in the air and I hope to bring it up another 20 feet by month's end as well. I receive the City of Lakeland and Polk County FL emergency, police, and bus service clearly [how fun is it to hear reports on a failed handicap platform on the "Citrus Connection" -- please read the sarcasm].

I hoped to get the NASA chatter on the r7000 with the next shuttle going up for the Hubble, but with a 90% chance at an 1801Z [1401 EDT] launch, I will still be at work. From my home, I can see the flame and smoke of the shuttle as well as the jettison of the twin side tanks, but I can't guarantee I will be able to see the same from my work location in Tampa.

I now have the ISS and NASA freqs, so I just need to program them and keep an eye out for the ISS as it passes overhead. Thought I'd pass them on you anyone who might be able to use them.

There are many Yahoo groups that will also be sources of good information. Just do a search of "shortwave radio groups" on Yahoo and you will find excellent information for your problems. I belong to about 12 different ones, includong antenna and radio specific ones. Hope this helps. Greg, KE5LDO

Where I live stations can't seem to make up their mind. It's on, it's off, it's on, it's off. Even if consumers wanted - which they don't - it's inconsistent nature would make anybody give up on it.

KDKA, a big 50KW AM station, can't seem to keep it on for more than a few days in a row.

I'm talking about pre-Limbaugh. All there was to listen to on FM opinion and news were liberals. Same deal on the public service stations. Those people were not on the air back in NY or out here in southern California. I have never listened any of the people you mentioned and I don't watch TV.

It seems to me there was at least one higher powered international broadcast from Venezuela but I'm not having any luck finding it right now. They are in a good spot to broadcast to the USA but maybe using the Cuban facilities was easier and cheeper.

Seems to me that recently I've heard something about a new SW facility for

See if you can wrap your brain around this retard. When the liberals are in charge speech they don't like is repressed by any means necessary. It's political warfare and "all is fair in love and war" so the so in Liberal Orwellian speak "fairness doctrine" is a means of repressing the opposition.

You know this and are just playing the part of a propaganda agent.

A broken CFL put all the mercury inside your house to clean up. If it

RRR at the Gateway of Gone Forever

One thing I've discovered over decades of opposing and debating bigots is that almost NONE of them EVER outgrow that mental deficiency as a result of having the FACTS presented to them. If I ever were to think I could accomplish that, my work would be an exercise in frustration.

Any person doltish enough to be an RRR cultist/bigot IS a dolt. And probably will either continue to be one for life, or will GRADUALLY outgrow it as more and more of them go into the closet rather than being ostracized as sociopaths. It's a certainty that countless tens of thousands of the former Segregationists who are still alive today STILL are -- in their minds. And just PRETEND not to be, out of a sense of self-preservation, rather than become laughingstocks. It will someday be the same for those who today are outspoken bigots with respect to same-sex marriage, and abortion, after their agendas have become extinct, and they have become passï¿½.

That, I think, is a glimpse of a refreshing American future. One that has no more of a "religious Radical Right" (RRR) than today still exists a KKK. The RRR and it's agendas' days are most assuredly (and thankfully) numbered. Then... good riddance to VERY putrid rubbish.

So WHY do I debate them in here? Because by presenting the FACTS that are devastating to their agenda, it can help fence-sitters to want no part of their hate-agendas. And to help accelerate the process of raising the consciousness of society to the utter ludicrousness and sociopathicness of those agenda. And THAT increasing perception of the truth will ultimately bring society to the critical mass necessary to cross the tipping point, and REJECT the RRR's agendas... forever.

Yes, the conservatives have not tried to control the media. They have not passed anything that regulates free speech other then obscenity. The liberals are the ones that you have to watch out for as they want to regulate speech they don't like to hear.

All the "unfairness doctrine" has accomplished is to suppress free speech the liberals don't like to hear.

It might help to narrow down the advice if the original poster could tell us what sort of radio he wants to connect an antenna to.

From the post, it sounds like a portable. If so, 30 feet of wire out the window might be more than enough. (Still not gonna sound like the beach, but at least there's less sand to get in the radio.)

Mr. Olberman's channel made over a $100,000,000 in profit. He is being Dobermann certainly does take the cake on this one. I actually liked to watch him when Bush was president. Dobermann would rant, rave, throw tantrums, jump and down in his seat, fling papers at the camera and generally hate Bush. And best of all were those priceless facial expressions, that only my pre-teen daughter could emulate. The guy was actually FUNNY. The guy had an edge. And in his business edgy is good.

Now he's just an MP3 recording for the white house communications office. It's sad to see the man lose his edge like that. But at least he got the money. Such is life. No more reason to watch Dobermann.

Wow! That IS impressive. Quotes from a Blog and excerpts from Letterman's show making jokes about politicians.

(Hint: Comedians have been poking fun at politicians since before you were born.)

Examples of jokes made at OBAMA'S expense:

“Today marks 100 days of President Obama being in office, which is a big deal because 100 days is when his warranty runs out. We couldn’t return him now even if we wanted to.” --Jimmy Kimmel

"President Barack Obama told his Cabinet yesterday to insure that every taxpayer dollar is spent wisely. But there was one embarrassing moment when he had to explain to the Cabinet what a taxpayer was." --
Jay Leno

"President Obama should get a big refund this year because he has a lot of dependents. AIG, Citibank, Morgan Stanley -- all dependents." --
Jay Leno

"Barack Obama's daughters are very smart. They told him they will take the same responsibility for the dog that he is taking for the economy.
That way, if the dog leaves a mess in the White House, it'll be cleaned up by future generations." --Jay Leno

"Well, the wait is over. The Obamas have chosen a new White House dog.
It is a Portuguese water dog named Bo. Very cute dog. Their first choice was a wheaten terrier, but it was arrested for tax evasion." -- Jimmy Fallon

"President Obama made a surprise visit to Iraq this week where he declared it is time for Iraqis to take responsibility for their country. Said Iraqis, 'You guys first.'" --Seth Meyers

"So they gave the Queen an iPod. I remember when British Prime Minister Gordon Brown was here, the Obamas gave him a DVD box set. So, it looks like they're saving the big gift, the Nintendo, for the Pope." --Jay Leno

My advice to you is to get a colon cleanse.

You will always get better reception on a beach than in an inland house. These antenna ideas might help but there is also a reason why there are so many different opinions on antennas, because what works for someone doesn't work for someone else.

A big factor is the location of your house. You could have power lines or other household appliances interfering with SW reception. Experiment around and I wish you luck.

Did you also try your shortwave on different days or nights? Propagation can differ greatly from day to day,.

What radio are you using?

Oh yeah. he's been "bitterly critical" of the fact that Obama won't persecute his own people who fight the war on terror. No reason to watch Dobermann anymore. He's become bitter. He was funnier when he had someone to hate instead of a puppet to play with. Dobermann lost his edge. No reason to watch.

I grew up in Tonawanda a few blocks from the intersection of Sheridan Drive and Niagara Falls Blvd. My High school was Kenmore East.

I've always been a program listener. So you must remember WKBW and all the crazy stuff they did.

Dobermann can rant all he wants about "torture". Funny how he's been so quiet on the Nancy Piglosi revelation. We'll see what he has to say about it on Monday at 8PM. Then at 9PM is "24". nancy Piglosi had her "24" moment didn't she?

Employees in Right-to Work States -- DEFEND that Right!!
Because THIS is what you will be in for if the Loathsome
"Unionization's Camel's Nose Act" is passed by Congress!
(Here come the GOONS!!)

It's DECEPTIVELY entitled the "Employees' Free Choice Act."

But it guarantees the OPPOSITE of freedom!

As THIS astute person was kind enough to tell us ---

"I love the pro-union responses! I'm amazed they can type such disingenuous drivel with a straight face! I see they don't address the fact that the bill allows and encourages unions to apply unlimited pressure on employees to
to sign the cards.

"I have the "United Steel Workers of America" union at my place and twice now the employees have tried to de-certify. The USW sent goons from a number of surrounding states to harass and threaten the employees in person at their homes, at all hours of the night and weekends to the point that many complained to the National Labor Board and a number of them quit. The next round is coming this year and the employees seem prepared for a battle. The USW sure doesn't want to give up the money they get each
week for nothing."

You should be so fortunate to have my life! Instead of being envious of someone else, go out and try and make a life for yourself. If you need to take meds to do make a life then take your meds. You'll be a better person without foisting your delusions on others and no one will make fun of you.

Try it - you just might like it!

Wow everyone! Thank you for your help.

I used to work at Radio Shack and when I was there, I bought myself a "Grundig S350." I'm not sure what your opinions are of this radio but it was one of the best purchases I have ever made. I love this radio. I am looking at the back of it right now and it has a place for "AM/SW ANT" and a ground. It looks like the old speaker wire "clip in" things. I'm not sure I described the "clip in" things really well. A hole with a switch that pinches the wire in place.

I guess one of the concerns I would have is finding a way to get the antenna line from outside of the house to inside.

Haiti was an ugly place in 1997 and it hasn't gotten any better since that time.

Remember when it was a rite of passage to coat a penny with mercury from a broken thermometer or the mercury switch out of an old thermostat? Sure, you don't want to ingest the stuff, but if we didn't live anywhere that there was stray mercury (in much larger quantities than in any fluorescent lamp), there wouldn't be a lot of places to live..

China has more 'Dirty' Coal Fired Power Plants
then any other Nation and now produces +50%
of all the Global {Wor;ld-Wide} Pollution from all
those Dirty Coal Fired Power Plants.
http://en.wikipedia.org/wiki/Fossil_fuel_power_plant
http://www.nytimes.com/2009/05/11/world/asia/11coal.html?ref=science
Yeah they are starting to build 'cleaner' Coal Fired Power Plants for the future -but- it will be many years and each year's pollution from
100 Years Ago.

The 'reality is' China is Today's Major Global Environmental Polluter {Criminal} and far exceeds the USA, Europe and Japan Combined.

Dave a Doctor's Prescription has Real Value
as a matter of Law.
-while- a Doctor's 'recommendation' has little value in Law -ie- Exercise & Lose Weight

So the Obama-Regime© has Ordered the DEA
Not To Enforce the Marijuana Laws

Pick up glass with gloves, put glass in plastic bag. Seal.

Use damp bar towell to wipe up spill area. Put towell in plastic bag.
Seal.

Put gloves, and two plastic bags from previous in 3rd plastic bag.
Seal. Dispose per HHW procedures in your jurisdiction.

Use real vacuum (one with HEPA filtration bag) to finish decontamination.

Obama is way too moderate for me. I don't really agree with his

He [Obama] seems like an affable guy, otherwise. Nice family.

Leftist?

Only in a fascist state would a populist centrist like Keith Olberman (or Rachel Maddow or Ed Schultz for that matter) be considered a "leftist". Dennis Kucinich is a leftist. Keith Olberman is not.

Sure I have. My favorite gag was always "Worst Person". I also listen to NPR, every weekday 5AM-7AM. And usually on Saturdays to "wait-wait-

At DCRTV.com, Dave Hughes gave Clear Channel's eRockster (now heard on WWDC's multicast channel) a plug only to note the next day (July 12) that it was off the air, as was WTOP's HD-3 traffic/weather channel. That's an experience I've had with many of New York's HD-2 channels as well, by the way. Classic American Liberal Thinking = Always Blame The USA

China is using 'Dirty' Coal Fired Power Plants
to Generate Electricity for it's Growing Urban Population and Manufacturing Industry.

About 30%~35% Goods are going to the USA
and the remaining Good are going to the Rest of the World -but- You only Blame the USA.

Today's Environmental Reality :
China has more 'Dirty' Coal Fired Power Plants
then any other Nation and now produces +50%
of all the Global {Wor;ld-Wide} Pollution from all
those Dirty Coal Fired Power Plants.
http://en.wikipedia.org/wiki/Fossil_fuel_power_plant
http://www.nytimes.com/2009/05/11/world/asia/11coal.html?ref=science
Yeah China [PRC] are starting to build 'cleaner'
Coal Fired Power Plants for the future -but- it will be many years and each year's pollution from China is as much as Decade for the World 100
Years Ago.

The 'reality is' China is Today's Major Global Environmental Polluter {Criminal} and far exceeds
the USA, Europe and Japan combined.

Well, the $500 per station is for stations billing under $1.25 million.

That applies to about 12,000 of the roughly 14,000 US stations, not including LPFMs, boosters, etc.

If the rate is proportional, certainly a point that could be argued for, then the highest billing station in the US would pay about $22 k a year.

And, since most HDs don't bill $1.25 million, they would pay the $500 fee.

Hedge Fund Leader Blasts Obama for "Bullying" and "Abuse of Power"

Cliff Asness, whose firm manages some $20 billion of assets, has written an open letter blasting President Obama for his attack on the hedge fund industry in the wake of the Chrysler bankruptcy.

As you'll recall, hedge funds, which hold approximately $1 billion in Chrysler bonds, refused the government's offer to take approximately thirty cents on the dollar. Obama accused hedge funds of holding out "for the prospect of an unjustified taxpayer-funded bailout."

These comments have enraged many in the industry but few have spoken out publicly. Asness, whose firm doesn't hold Chrysler bonds, says the industry is genuinely afraid in the face of Obama's power. Stating that he himself is "fearful writing this," Asness still pulls no punches:

•"Let’s be clear, it is the job and obligation of all investment managers, including hedge fund managers, to get their clients the most return they can. They are allowed to be charitable with their own money, and many are spectacularly so, but if they give away their clients’ money to share in the “sacrifice”, they are stealing."

•"The President screaming that the hedge funds are looking for an unjustified taxpayer-funded bailout is the big lie writ large. Find me a hedge fund that has been bailed out. Find me a hedge fund, even a failed one, that has asked for one. In fact, it was only because hedge funds have not taken government funds that they could stand up to this bullying. The TARP recipients had no choice but to go along."

•"The President's attempted diktat takes money from bondholders and gives it to a labor union that delivers money and votes for him. Why is he not calling on his party to "sacrifice" some campaign contributions, and votes, for the greater good? Shaking down lenders for the benefit of political donors is recycled corruption and abuse of power.

"Henry discusses the controversy with hedge fund manager Jeff Matthews, of Ram Partners. (He's also author of the popular blog Jeff Matthews Is Not Making This Up.) Matthews says it's no surprise that Obama would favor unions over hedge funds and that there's no use in crying foul in the court of public opinion. But, says Matthews, expect the Administration's tactics to be challenged where they should be: the court of law.Here's the full text of Asness's letter, via Zero

Science project? IBOC is old technology misapplied to the AM broadcast band. Nothing scientific about that and damn poor engineering to boot.

iBiquity certainty has made a lot of false claims but I would not be at

I have an FRG7700 I bought in the 80s and had mechanical filters added by a company in San Diego, so the whole thing cost around $1000 dollars by the time all the gadgets were added in... back when I had a job that paid well. ... not long afterward, the connections were loose instead of bothering to send it back to pay more to have it fixed again, I got out the soldering iron and periodically heated up the connection... Ooops... one night I left the iron on too long one of those burning plastic/capacitor smells fumed out, and the Frog doesn't work any more.
I live in the San Francisco bay area... does anyone know of someone good and experienced who might be able to fix the radio? Jeez I sure miss it. ... didn't have the luxury cash to get it fixed until recently.

Go to the website at http://www.dxing.com/ where Glenn Hauser posted reviews of a lot of old shortwave radios produced in past years, with descriptions and ratings... he also mentions a book you can buy that reviews shortwave radios produced in past years. It is a very good idea to shop carefully because some shortwave radios aren't really worth the money they cost. Also as someone else mentioned its quite important to have a good antenna.
Some people claim 'active antenna' booster don't work but I found that they do.... I suppose that's because I have hooked them up to good antenna wires. If you use them alone and expect them to boost reception, they probably don't do much except drag in electronic noises from surrounding power lines and electronic devices in the neighborhood.
There are also noise filters you can plug into the wall outlet and then plug the radio into the filter.... I found that helps filter out some noises, but not all.
Glenn Hauser's website is one of the finest sources for information on how to use a shortwave radio correctly in order to maximize reception.

The dolphins and whales not killed by the US Navy filter it out to some degree. They, in turn, poison the pet food they are processed into.

Little Fluffy, the kitten, is breathing toxic heavy metal fumes into the sleeping baby's face even as we speak.

Classic Canadian Liberal Thinking = Always Blame The USA

China is using 'Dirty' Coal Fired Power Plants
to Generate Electricity for it's Growing Urban Population and Manufacturing Industry.

About 30%~35% Goods are going to the USA
and the remaining Good are going to the Rest
of the World -but- You only Blame the USA.

Today's Environmental Reality :
China has more 'Dirty' Coal Fired Power Plants
then any other Nation and now produces +50%
of all the Global {Wor;ld-Wide} Pollution from all
those Dirty Coal Fired Power Plants.
http://en.wikipedia.org/wiki/Fossil_fuel_power_plant
http://www.nytimes.com/2009/05/11/world/asia/11coal.html?ref=science
Yeah China [PRC] are starting to build 'cleaner'
Coal Fired Power Plants for the future -but- it will be many years and each year's pollution from China is as much as Decade for the World 100
Years Ago.

The 'reality is' China is Today's Major Global Environmental Polluter {Criminal} and far exceeds
the USA, Europe and Japan combined.

As usual, you are so blindly partisan that you just don't get it.

First, the OP said we were outsourcing pollution to China, not me -- so you should have sent your response to him.

Finally, it's a subtle point (and I realize subtlety isn't your forte), but what the OP meant was that because we have outsourced a very large percentage of our manufacturing from this country to China, we have, in essence, also outsourced our pollution too (as mfg. and pollution go hand in glove AND that's part of the reason why manufacturing in China is so cheap -- no pollution controls).

Get it now?

Anyway, isn't it time for your remedial punctuation class? ;-)

Guckert made more than 200 appearances at the White House during his two-year tenure with the fledging conservative websites GOPUSA and Talon News, attending 155 of 196 White House press briefings. He had little to no previous journalism experience, previously worked as a male escort, and was refused a congressional press pass.

Perhaps more notable than the frequency of his attendance, however, is several distinct anomalies about his visits.

Guckert made more than two dozen excursions to the White House when there were no scheduled briefings. On many of these days, the Press Office held press gaggles aboard Air Force Oneï¿½which raises questions about what Guckert was doing at the White House. On other days, the president held photo opportunities.

On at least fourteen occasions, Secret Service records show either the entry or exit time missing. Generally, the existing entry or exit times correlate with press conferences; on most of these days, the records show that Guckert checked in but was never processed out.

In March, 2003, Guckert left the White House twice on days he had never checked in with the Secret Service. Over the next 22 months, Guckert failed to check out with the Service on fourteen days. On several of these visits, Guckert either entered or exited by a different entry/exit point than his usual one. On one of these days, no briefing was held; on another, he checked in twice but failed to check out.

ï¿½Iï¿½d be worried if I was the White House and I knew that a reporter with a day pass never left,ï¿½ one White House reporter told RAW STORY. ï¿½Iï¿½d wonder, where is he hiding? It seems like a security risk.ï¿½

Others who have covered the White House say not checking in or out with the Secret Service is unusual, especially in the wake of Sept. 11. The Secret Service declined to comment.

BP,

Most of the Industrial Nations are Out-Sourcing to China; and while the USA is a significant consumer of Chinese Goods : The Rest of the World's Nations are Consumers of Chinese Goods too. In-fact the Rest of the Consumes More than the USA -but- You Only Blame the USA. Had you Blamed the USA; the EU and

You don't know what the rates will be based on - it could be per song per listener. Just more added expense for HD Radio broadcasters, who already have to pay iNiquity an annual fee for each HD channel, with no possible ROI.

I know that's what Live365 pays. But they pay it based upon the total listener numbers of all their stations (which means they pay more than they really need to, since a fair number of their stations do not play copyrighted material).

PR that's an Absurd Statement :

Are the FM Radio Stations presently showing a Profit ?

-If-So- Then there is always some 'possible' ROI !

Billing Rates Change and Today's FM HD-Radio HD2 Channel Market Development Cost can become Tomorrow's Additional Profit Center for FM Radio Stations with a different set of Advertisers for each FM HD Channels = "Diversified Income"

While on this subject- why is the price of brand new SW portables remaining stable (usually under $200) and the price of OLD,USED,generally LOWER performance samples becoming shocking as we just witnessed? Vintage Grundigs (not Lextronic) had great audio,but was never designed as a DX machine.Also, Grundig radios weren't as durable as some other European brands that were made in the past -Philips,Braun etc.

Likely, it has to do with the fact that these are vintage Grundigs. A name that is little more than a badge in the US. And a name that's still stuggling elsewhere.

These are not, as you point out, Chinese or India made One-ders. They're Grundigs from an era when that name meant something. They're rare, and hard to service, today.

Such things will drive the prices up, among collectors.

From the mouth of dieting authority, Rush says that sugar (or fructose) does not cause problems with weight or diabetes.

The sad part is that I know that the LimpBall lemmings will be eating a ton of candies and soda tonight. Then, wondering why in the hell they gained all that weight, have a bigger diabetes problems and are depressed from the sugar high.

It's another hypocritical falsehood generated by the leader of the stupid half of our nation. But, it explains why there are seldom any skinny republican'ts! (minus the ones who can't afford candy or are on meth)

Just What Does the California GoverNator

Billion Dollar Budget Overruns in a State-Wide {National} Recession / Depression DON'T SALE [.]

Former Tax Payers Who Have Lost Their Jobs and Homes Don't Vote For Tax Increases.
* California Unemployment Rate : 11.5%
* California posted the nation’s third highest state Foreclosure Rate, with one in every 58 housing units {1.7%} receiving a Foreclosure filing.
Result : That's a 13.2% Voter Negative {Fear Factor} to overcome in a Tax Increase Election.

When some/many Home Owners in California

Their Property Taxes Remain at 2006 Highs : They

California's US Senators and US Congressional Delegation SUCKS BIG TIME : When it comes to Balancing the US Federal Governments Taxation from the State of California -and- the US Federal Governments Spending back-to the State of California.
* California's US Senators and US Congressional Delegation has Failed the US Federal Tax Paying Citizens of California.
In the pre-Clinton Years the State of California 'received' $1.08 in US Federal Government Spending {that's Plus Eight Cents + 8 ¢ } for Every US Federal Government Tax Dollar that was Collected in the State.
* The Present California US Senators and US Congressional Delegation has Failed the US Federal Tax Paying Citizens of California.
Now In-the-Age-of-Obama© the State of California 'received' only $0.78 Cents in US Federal Government Spending {that's Minus 22 Cents - 22 ¢} for Every US Federal Government Tax Dollar that is Collected in the State.
* California's US Senators and US Congressional Delegation has Short Changed the US Federal Tax Paying Citizens of California.
This 22 Cent Short Fall for Every US Federal Government Tax Dollar : Results in $50 Billion Dollars of Federal Spending being Taken-Out of the State of California which Results in $5 Billion Dollars of State Taxes Not Generated within the State of California for a Decade or More.
* California's US Senators and US Congressional Delegation has allowed the US Federal Tax Paying Citizens of California to be Ripped-Off by the US Federal Government.
The US Federal Government is In-Fact Robbing the Tax Paying People of State of California of $50 Billion Dollars a Year of Capital Spending, Business and Jobs; and the Elected US Senators and US Congressional Delegation is Responsible.
President Barack 'Hussein' Obama Give The Good Citizens of California Their Fair Share of Federal Tax Revenue and Spending and STOP the Robbery of Their US Federal Tax Dollars.

Fifty Billion Dollars a Year from 1997 to 2009

"Availablize" is often used in Glenn Hauser's DX Listening Digest [DXLD] : I don't necessarily think of Glenn Hauser or the DX Listening Digest as being part of the 'lunatic fringe of the political say about You [M II] since you too are a Radio Listener and a DX'er.

If you are so certain insurance companies can save lots of money, you should create your own insurance company. With all the money your company saves using your brilliant ideas, you will be able to outcompete the other companies and dominate the insurance market.

They don't "BaN" him, because, like all sane, and even most insane

He may have been born in Kenya, who knows. But, he certainly was abandoned in Hawaii, by both his mother and his father.

More will have coverage than do now. Remember right now, the estimate is that 40 million have no coverage at all. That's the ultimate denial of treatment. You can still pay for extra coverage if you are afraid of rationing. The rich won't have to worry about rationing because they can afford to pay cash.

The rationing would only apply to people receiving experimental surgeries and who will rely on the gov't program. It's not as if private heath care will be abolished.

How silly.

"The Performance Rights Act has passed in the House Judiciary Committee. The bill was introduced by Judiciary Chairman John Conyers (D-MI) and was expected to be approved in committee. The bill now goes on to a vote in the full House. There are still several steps before this bill becomes law, if it ever does: A similar bill, introduced by Sen. Patrick Leahy (D-VT), must be passed by the Senate, and then the differences between the versions will need to be reconciled before a final version can be sent to President Obama for his signature or veto."

You remove the 10 million "non-citizens" and 17 million who chose to go

Until Canada's supreme court overturned the rule, Canadians were prohibited from seeking medical care outside the government system on the grounds that everyone was entitled to equal treatment, and that rich people should not be allowed to purchase superior treatment that the poor didn't receive. As a result, Canadians who can afford it go the U.S. for treatment, even though they have to pay all the costs out of their own pockets.

d'Eduardo - Life Exists and People Do Live Beyond the 64 dbu Contour : The Land of the Blinking Blue Light

The FM HD-Radio Digital Power Increase from 1% to a higher 4%~10% of the old Analog ERP Rating should give FM HD-Radio all the Digital ERP to fully cover the prior Analog FM Radio Coverage Area; and for the most part provide a reliable FM HD-Radio

MWB,

Yes - More will have Less Healthy Care Coverage at a Higher Price {Taxes} to pay for the US Federal Government Bloated Bureaucracy to Manage the whole 'Free' {sic} Universal Healthy Care System.

1 - Once again the only Costed Effective way to Pay for a National 'Universal' Health Care System is a Nation-Wide Sales Tax which Equally distributes the Cost on both Domestic and Imported Goods; and does not burden Domestic Goods with the Cost of the System via Income Taxes built into the US Goods and Services. {Remember It's Socialism}

Between us all here, there are about 25 HD car radios in use... some in use for about 4 years. All incidents of dropouts on HD 2 channels are outside the 64 dbu contour (using a Longley-Rice projection, of course).

One of the Key {Cost Containment} Features of

Over the past few decades there has been a systematic and brutal campaign being leveled at the world's Christian community. This has been happening in Europe, Asia, Africa, and the Middle East. As disparate as these regions are, the common thread in all of these cases of persecution is that the perpetrators are Muslims. The Muslim persecution of Christians has reached Genocidal proportions.

It is an issue that no one wants to discuss. The level of international attention given to this issue is deafeningly quiet. No outcry, marches, protests, no speeches on the floor of Congress, no speeches at the United Nations. There are no major Hollywood productions and no Tibet-like bumper stickers.

Millions of Christians have been put to death for the sole reason that they are Christian. All of these deaths have been at the hands of Muslims, who kill the "infidel" in the name of their prophet Muhammad.

The time for silence at this Genocidal persecution of Christians is over. The Freedom Center has written pamphlets and numerous articles on this issue, screened an exceptional movie by Pierre Rehov and brought speakers on the campuses of America to shine a light on these atrocities.

Now, the Center is releasing another in its series of flash videos to show in striking reality, the plight of the world's Christians and to explain the threat they face. Our flash videos have been viewed by millions, from students to activists, the media and public officials.

This flash video, The Muslim Persecution of Christians

http://media.terrorismawareness.org/files/MPAC.swf

is a vital tool that can be used to spread the truth and expose the nature of Islam and the threat it poses to all peoples of the world and in this case specifically, the plight of the Christians. The once vibrant Christian communities of the Middle and North Africa are disappearing before our eyes.

got this from a buddy of mine today

Subject: Very Important Notice

Whether you are an Obama fan, or not, EVERYONE IN THE U.S. Needs to know....

Something happened... H.R. 1388 was passed yesterday, behind our backs. You may want to read about it. It wasn't mentioned on the news... Just went by on the Ticker tape at the bottom of the CNN screen.

Obama funds $20M in tax payer dollars to immigrate Hamas Refugees to the USA.
This is the news that didn't make the headlines...

By executive order, President Barack Obama has ordered The expenditure of $20.3 Million in "migration assistance" to the Palestinian Refugees and "conflict victims" in Gaza.

The "presidential determination", which allows hundreds of thousands of Palestinians with ties to Hamas to resettle in the United States, was signed on January 27 and appeared in the Federal Register on February 4.

Few on Capitol Hill, or in the media, took note that the Order provides a free ticket replete with housing and Food allowances to individuals who have displayed their overwhelming support to the Islamic Resistance Movement (Hamas)
In the parliamentary election of January 2006.
&n bsp;
Let's review...itemized list of some of Barack Obama's Most recent actions since his inauguration:

His first call to any head of state, as president, was to Mahmoud Abbas, leader Of Fatah party in the Palestinian territory.

His first one-on-one television interview with any news Organization was with Al Arabia television.

His first executive order was to fund/facilitate Abortion's not just here within the U. S. but within the world, using U. S. Tax payer funds.

He ordered Guantanamo Bay closed and al l military Trials of detainees halted.

He ordered overseas CIA interrogation centers closed.

He withdrew all charges against the masterminds behind the USS Cole and the "terror attack" on 9/11.

Now we learn that he is allowing hundreds of thousands Of Palestinian refuges to move to, and live in, The US at American taxpayer expense.

These important, and insightful, issues are being "lost" in the blinding Bail-outs and "stimulation" packages.

Doubtful? To verify this for yourself:

Www.thefederalregister.com/d.p/2009-02-04-E9-2488

PLEASE PASS THIS ON... AMERICA NEEDS TO KNOW WE are losing this country at a rapid pace.

For a large part of my life I used employer-paid health care. That meant that our product / service was undercut by one from a nation that had an NHS.
I was in the Navy and earner a pensin and medical care TFL.

I lived in GB for years, using their NHS.

Back in the states, I was on TFL for a couple of years before they shifted me over to whatever SS calls their plan.

Were I running the world, we would all have something like the British NHS or TFL. (I understand that the French NHS is even better)

NO insurance companies involved means doing away with a whole arm of financial paperwork and being able to devote the saved cash to medicines, instead.
The saved space from the bean=counters would mean being able to hold more beds, too, I guess.

My late wife was a medical secretary, so she would be needed, but the accointants - most of them - could take a hike!

"HD radio breaks up!"

"I know this has been around the block before. I would like to here from any members particularly in the Seattle area that have HD radio and what their likes and dislikes are. I have had the same problem ever since I took delivery with the HD cutting out. Mine will cut in and out at a traffic light. I live 6 miles from work and the HD will cut out 2-10 times during my commute. I have taken it to the dealer last week and they replaced the tail light sockets. Their take on it was there was an magnetic interferance issue with the antenna system causing the HD to cut in and out. This has not fixed the problem but they say the antenna signal strength is higher now. I can't say if it's the car radio or that HD is not as strong as signal and this is just the way it is. This problem exists with all HD channels. I would hate to see the dealer keep my car for an extended period of time when in fact there is nothing wrong. I am in south Seattle."

"Problem with HD Radio"

"I am having a problem with my HD Radio. I have iDrive, so I see everything on the big screen. My radio is set to be in HD mode all the time, but it switches to analog on occasion. On one of my preset stations, when it is in HD mode, the station will play for two seconds and then it will fade out and not come back. If it is in analog mode, the station will play without fading out... I went to the service department yesterday and the SA told me that it may be weather-related. We have been having some crazy weather here in Southern California. I first noticed these problems during the bad weather -- but it seems like it may be something more than weather issues."

"I have started to experience a problem with my HD Radio and was wondering if I'm alone, or if any of my fellow 'festers have ideas. Every once in a while (and now, all too often), my Radio will 'buzz' whenever a station is tuned. The buzzing will quickly become louder than the radio content. I can stop this phenomenon by during the HD Radio 'off', in the Audio Settings. After turning the car off, and back on this will ususally go away. Today it didn't (go away). I love the sound of the HD Radio. However, this is becoming unacceptable."

A Beemer? When I was at Scott Air Force Base in 1963, I bought a 1957 BMW Isetta car for $350.00 from an Air Force Officer.The car didn't have a radio.As loud as that car was, a radio would have been a waste of time.People used to pick up my little car and hide it behind those Evergreen bushes/trees.Driving across the Eads Bridge in rainy weather in that little car was SPOOKY! I sold that death trap to an Army Officer when I found out I was going to Viet Nam.

spew conspiracies and then backpeddles when the heat becomes too much to take. So loser describes yourself quite well as do "spineless" and

Hey, that's great Mike. I can still fund health care for non-producing but maybe, just maybe people should be responsible for funding their own

I got a better idea. You explain to me why I'm responsible for someone else's health care. I looked in the constitution and I could not find an answer there. Maybe you could point it out to me.

As defined by the ability of HD to perform at all. A self fulfilling Elemental mercury is poorly absorbed via digestion. I remember reading a case study of someone drinking 600 mL of the stuff. The guy had elevated levels of some liver proteins for about a year which then went back to normal. No chronic side effects noted after more than 1 year. Dermal absorption is also quite poor but vapour intake is the big issue.

All bets are off with most organomercury compounds. Many of those compounds are just plain evil to use.

Well, it's worse than that actually, since it's an arm of the left-wing of The Democratic Party. Which is mostly why the people with non-zero computer and robot brains even work on Optical Computers, C
Distrubuted Processing, MP3, MPEG, CD-rw, DVD-rom,
HDTV Debuggers, USB, Fiber Optics, Holograms,
GPS, and Digital-Terrain Mapping, rather than with the idiots.

Really? I didn't know that. Anyone else, is this fact?

Don't know about the UK. I do know that they did it in the US during the war. There have been varying accounts of to whom it was done. Some accounts say only expatriots of enemy countries, some say all SW radios had to be modified. I've personally had to rebuild several of the pre-war SW radios that had been disabled on SW (some were really nasty hack jobs...
bandswitches removed or wired around, coils removed, components broken, etc.).

I have relatives who listened to SW on their massive radios for the

You made what you thought were intelligent statements in a public forum but in reality it was just BS. This is apparent to all except you.

? Intentionally ?
1 - Due to Low Wages and Claim that They Can't Afford Health Insurance ~ 30% -and-Don't Know About Public Programs for the Low Income Workers and their Families.
2 - Earn Good Wages Contract Commissions and Claim that They Are Healthy and Don't Need Health Insurance ~ 22%
3 - Just Plain Choose Not to Buy Health Insurance ~ 11%

Clearly 2 out of 3 Intentionally Choose Not to

But Many People Do Not "Buy" Auto Insurance

Yes because ultimately the Taxpayers pay

Now you are raving about... nothing but do feel free to give the government a large donation toward someone else's healthcare. So how much is that going to be hypocrite? You opened your big stupid mouth so now lets hear what you are going to do about it.

Your kook impaired brain can't process simple posts. This is just a comprehension problem you have, which might be solvable by class time but don't expect me to pay for it. The "Unproductive scum" are people like you that expect someone else to pay their way for whatever benefit you care to mention.

So go stick your incomprehensible dumb ass comments where the sun don't shine loser.

The last time I looked the FM radio in my car didn't have the ability to differentiate which side of the 64 dBu coverage line it was on.

- For a large part of my life I used employer-paid
- health care. That meant that our product / service
- was undercut by one from a nation that had an NHS.

1 - IF the Employer/Employee Pays for the Employer Provided Health Care that that Cost is Factored into the Cost of that Employer's Products and Services.

2 - IF the Employer/Employee Pays Taxes for the Government Provided Health Care that that Cost is Factored into the Cost of that Employer's Products and Services.

One and two are about Equal in Increasing the Cost of Production and the End Cost of the Goods and Services.

Plus One and Two Make Domestic Goods and Services Cost More than those Imported Goods
Not Subject to those Domestic Costs.

A National Sales Tax on All Goods and Services that is Imposed on Both Domestic and Imported Goods Levels the Playing Field {Equalizes} for All Goods and Services and does not Penalize Domestic Goods and Services.

A National Sales Tax System over the Long Term helps to Increase Domestic Employment and Reduce Imports over an Employer Wage Based Income Tax System.

90% of US Citizens and Residents both Legal and Illegal should be Paying their State and Federal Taxes via Consumer Sales Taxes :
Instead of Wage Income Taxes. The 'Other' 10% should in addition be Paying a Flat Wage Income Tax Equal to the Sales Tax on Incomes that are greater than 5 Times the National Income Average {$50K} -say- $250K.

The Simple Facts is that the USA is no longer an International Producer -aka- Exporting Nation
The USA is now an International Consumer
-aka- Importing Nation -and- Consumer Nations Benefit Most from aSales Tax System versus a Wage Income Tax System.

Yes, exactly.

Life is so much simpler for the oboma'tards. The Obomination may have promised to pay the oboma'tards way but it will be the people that work and pay taxes that provide for them.

I'll pay my taxes and not whine about it, Telemundoh. I know people who have been almost totally wiped out due to not having insurance, but I guess you just feel they should quietly die and not bother anyone, right? If everyone paid a little, we could all have insurance, but that's something you can't tolerate. Do you whine so much about paying property taxes too? After all, some of that money goes to fix the streets of "unproductive scum", doesn't it?

BWHAHAHA! Talk about a hair trigger. I should have known what your feelings about health care reform would be from reading your political statements.

My tax income tax return and property tax bill says I'm hardly "Unproductive scum". But keep raving, you sure do it well.

I pay a lot for medical.

I pay a lot for property tax.

> After all, some of that money goes to fix the streets
< SNIP >

I also pay for that.

I pay sales tax, property tax, fees and licenses, state income tax, federal income tax. I have paid windfall taxes. My tax rate is between 45 and 50% so I almost pay half of what I make in taxes on a bad year and more then that in a good year.

You are not going to convince me to pay more money to the government for people that don't make their own way. That is called charity, which is not a government function.

Hey Kookaburra, hit the road and take your 'tard talk someplace else.

FWIW there are about 1500+ Coal Fired Electric Power Plants in the USA with an Average Age of 45 Years.

There is a funny story about that. Until Dec 7,1941 the US was officially a neutral country. US hams were allowed and activly in contact with German hams. By that time German hams were required to end every transmission with "hh" (heil Hitler) (four dits (space) four dits).

US hams responed with 55 (five dits (space) five dits). Eventually everyone did including the German hams, assuming the people assigned to monitoring them were not the best morse operators and would not know the difference.

The practice of using 55 as "back to you" or "over" continued for many years but seems to have faded.

So do I. I also pay a whole lot for the portion of my mother's medications not covered by insurance. Over $5K in 2007, and almost $4K last year. Thankfully, she's going on medicare, and that's over with.
All I have to pay for is food and cable, etc. You're probably against that too, right?

Join the club. I got hammered this April, as I made more in 08 than I made in 07, and I will probably make more this year, if things stay the same.

I'm not trying to convince you, as that would be pointless, but your venom towards universal insurance, and anything non right wing is..interesting to put it mildly..

LOL, I wouldn't have cared much if you did or not, Telemundoh, but you did say, "People like you", so I think you've put your tap dancing shoes on, as usual.

I have a much much thicker skin than you do, so I can take a zing without foaming at the mouth unlike some people..

I'm sure you do, as I help support my mother, so I don't have a lot of money do donate lately.

- So do I. I also pay a whole lot for the portion of my mother's
- medications not covered by insurance. Over $5K in 2007, and almost $4K
- last year. Thankfully, she's going on medicare, and that's over with.
- All I have to pay for is food and cable, etc. You're probably against
- that too, right?

Dang Telamon - All That Tax Paying Stuff
Just Makes You Sound Like The Average tax, Tax. TAX ! Paying and Paying and Paying and Paying John Q Public To Me.
Your Answer is a National Sales Tax to Pay
Federal Taxes and for Universal Health Care
-cause- Then All Consumers Pay the same level of Taxes depending on what they Spend and Consume. That includes the US Citizen, Legal Residents; Illegal Alien Invaders; and Foreign Visitors Alike.
And up to about 5-Times the National Average Income {$50K} it is a fairly Equitable Tax System;
PLUS those making above $250K have to Pay an Additional Flat {No Exemptions and No Deductions} Wage, Income and Earnings Tax at least Equal to the National Sales Tax.
Why a Flat Tax PLUS National Tax System Is Necessary For America's Future Financial Health

As near as IU can tell, you damned each other to Hell eons ago, and it stuck.

That's not how it's done in the civilized world. They tried; it doesn't work.

If we want to be competitive globally, we need to unburden business from providing health care. How much would a Chevy cost without the cost of health care rolled into the price? How can we compete with Canada and S. Korea if our companies have to pay this huge expense and theirs don't?

Remove the age limit from Medicare.

How do you know this? How do you define listening? PPMs that pick up the radio behind the counter when you buy a pack of smokes? The radio in the taxi?

I remember 64 dBu as a TV term. In radio it was 60 dBu (aka 1 mV/m; aka Grade B Contour). Perhaps it has since been modified, as I retired from radio about 20 years ago (when people stopped "listening").

Hey, that's really a great idea!

I'm sure they -could- fund their own health care -- if only it wasn't for that pesky economy that has tens of millions out of work and thus not able to "fund their own health care".

I guess if they can't find a job, we will just have to set your "unproductive scum" out on the curb to die when they get sick.

Oh, and one other thing...as a "good and compassionate Christian", I hope you are fervently praying that YOUR job doesn't go away.

I don't know if there is a mod available (probably not, unless one can engineer one), but on LW band this RX is 2Khz out on it's frequencies. It correctly jumps 9Khz spacing, but it steps are: 150 - 155 - 164- 173- 182 - 191 - 200 ......It should step: 150 - 153 - 162 - 171 - 180 - 189 - 198 Khz.

(Don't know why it starts at 150Khz!)

Anyone know if it's feasible to adjust the frequency 2Khz lower on LW? You may have to be a whizz-kid :c)

I think I may have to ask the manufacturer.

Failing that I'd need a schematic and some technical help.

I can tune 1Khz steps on fine tune, but it would be convenient to hit the channels when tuning.

I never knew there was an antenna adapter for this RX. My Roberts RC818 (Sangean ATS818 ACS) (bought second-hand) never came with an antenna adapter. And I don't think there's anything missing in the box.

I suppose I might be able to source one from somewhere if I wanted one. Ebay I suspect. :c)

One must remember that Bryant is full of BS (Bryant Sierra). He's a dufus academic who at one time claimed to have a PhD.

Bryant is like Obama, believe him and follow him at your peril, and your country's peril.

Listeners can differentiate, quite obviously, between signals that come in nicely and those that don't. Of course, depending on the actual location and type of radio, what we see is that listening becomes less and less common (even when indexed against population density) the farther you go from the transmitter. Once you get outside the 70 dbu contour, listening falls to nearly nothing approaching the zone around the 64 dbu. It's a question of listening density, indicating that listeners will not go to the trouble as the signal gets weaker, particularly if they have other options.

We know it after several different parties analyzed literally millions of Arbitron diaries over a multi-year period. Diaries include the home and work ZIP code, and since 70% of listening occurs in those two locations, it's a perfect base. Diary ZIP code returns by station were laid over maps of coverage and the results tabulated... and we got the figures cited.

This analysis, also done separately by Arbitron internally, resulted in both the AM and FM signal based crediting system for stations or shows available on more than one station in a general area; Arbitron's ascription process first uses best signal to make a decision, and if neither station available has a good signal, a random number generator determines who gets credit. But the base here is the same study... where is each station listenable under normal circumstances.

After virtually every disaster created by Beltway politicians you can hear the sound of feet scurrying for cover in Washington, see fingers pointing in every direction away from Washington, and watch all sorts of scapegoats hauled up before Congressional committees to be denounced on television for the disasters created by members of the committee who are lecturing them.

The word repeated endlessly in these political charades is "deregulation." The idea is that it was a lack of government supervision which allowed "greed" in the private sector to lead the nation into crises that only our Beltway saviors can solve.

What utter rubbish this all is can be found by checking the record of how government regulators were precisely the ones who imposed lower mortgage lending standards-- and it was members of Congress (of both parties) and who pushed the regulators, the banks and the mortgage-buying giants Fannie Mae and Freddie Mac into accepting risky mortgages, in the name of "affordable housing" and more home ownership. Presidents of both parties also jumped on the bandwagon.

Most people don't have time to spend digging into the Congressional Record and other sources to find out the ugly truth being covered up by the blizzard of lies coming out of Washington and echoed in much of the media. But my research assistants do that for a living, and it is all presented in a book of mine titled "The Housing Boom and Bust" that has just been published.

http://www.nationalreview.com/redirect/amazon.p?j=0465018807

When the housing boom was going along merrily, Congressman Barney Frank was proud to be one of those who were pushing Fannie Mae and Freddie Mac into more adventurous financial practices, in the name of "affordable housing."

In 2003 he said: "I believe that we, as the Federal Government, have probably done too little rather than too much to push them to meet the goals of affordable housing and to set reasonable goals." He added: "I want to roll the dice a little bit more in this situation towards subsidized housing."

In other words, when things were looking good, he was happy to acknowledge the role of the federal government in pushing the housing market in a direction it would not have taken on its own. But, after the risky mortgage-lending practices fostered by government intervention led to massive defaults and foreclosures that caused financial institutions to collapse or be bailed out, Congressman Frank changed his tune completely.

By 2007, his line was now that "the subprime crisis demonstrates the serious negative economic and social consequences that result from too little regulation." By 2008, his line was that the financial crisis was caused by "bad decisions that were made by people in the private sector."

When television financial reporter Maria Bartiromo reminded Congressman Frank of his statements in earlier years, he simply denied making the statements she quoted and blamed "right-wing Republicans who took the position that regulation was always bad."

Regulation is of course not always bad, and it would be hard to find anyone of any party who says that it is. Moreover, Congressman Frank had some Republican collaborators in pushing regulators to push banks into risky mortgage lending.

As for the market, financial market specialist Mark Zandi put it very plainly: "Lending money to American homebuyers had been one of the least risky and most profitable businesses a bank could engage in for nearly a century."

What changed that was not the market but politicians like Barney Frank and his Senate counterpart Christopher Dodd, pushing the "affordable housing" crusade through government intervention, in disregard of the risks that they were repeatedly warned about by people inside and outside of government.

Although this is the biggest housing disaster the government has ever produced, it is by no means the first. Republicans intervened in the housing markets to promote more home ownership in the 1920s, Democrats in the 1930s and both parties after World War II. All of these interventions led to massive foreclosures.

Don't politicians ever learn? Why should they? What they have learned all too well is how easy it is to get credit for promoting home ownership and how easy it is to escape blame for the later foreclosures and other economic disasters that follow.

Housing Boom and Bust
The same discredited assumptions and the same disregard of repercussions.

By Thomas Sowell

EDITOR’S NOTE: The following is adapted from Thomas Sowell’s new book, The Housing Boom and Bust.

Let us go back to square one to consider the empirical consequences of policies in the housing market. Politicians in Washington set out to solve a national problem that did not exist — a nationwide shortage of "affordable housing" — and have now left us with a problem whose existence is as undeniable as it is painful. When the political crusade for affordable housing took off and built up steam during the 1990s, the share of their incomes that Americans were spending on housing in 1998 was 17 percent, compared to 30 percent in the early 1980s. Even during the housing boom of 2005, the median home took just 22 percent of the median American income.

What created the illusion of a nationwide problem was that, in particular localities around the country, housing prices had skyrocketed to the point where people had to pay half their income to buy a modest-sized home and often resorted to very risky ways of financing the purchase. In Tucson, for example, "roughly 60% of first-time home buyers make no down payment and instead now use 100% financing to get into the market," according to the Wall Street Journal. Almost invariably, these locally extreme housing prices have been a result of local political crusades in the name of locally attractive slogans about the environment, open space, "smart growth," or whatever other phrases had political resonance at the particular time and place.

Where housing markets have been more or less left alone — in places like Houston or Dallas, for example — housing did not take even half as big a share of family incomes as did comparable housing in places like the San Francisco Bay Area, where heavily hyped political crusades had led to severe restrictions on building. It was in precisely these extremely high housing-cost enclaves that the kind of people for whom the national housing crusade expressed much concern — minorities, low-income people and families with children — were forced out disproportionately.

Few things blind human beings to the actual consequences of what they are doing like a heady feeling of self-righteousness during a crusade to smite the wicked and rescue the downtrodden. Statistical studies about disparities between blacks and whites in mortgage loan approval rates might be said to have "jump-started" the housing crusades that began in the 1990s. Politicians and the media led this crusade, with many community activists following in their wake, much like scavengers, able to extract large sums of money from banks and other institutions by raising claims of discrimination, whose power to delay government approval of bank mergers and other business decisions made pay-offs to these activists the only prudent course for those accused.

Even where loudly proclaimed concern for the poor and minorities gave impetus to the drive for over-riding traditional mortgage lending standards, this is not to say that the poor and minorities were the sole beneficiaries or even the main beneficiaries. When you open the floodgates, you cannot tell the water where to go. Housing speculators — "flippers" — found the new and looser home mortgage rules a bonanza.

So did many others. It is by no means clear that the poor or minorities came out ahead at all, after the housing boom turned to bust and many were left with mortgage payments they couldn't meet on homes they couldn't afford.

With rich rewards available — politically, ideologically, and financially — from the "affordable housing" crusade, there were ample incentives to keep this crusade going for years. Meanwhile, various special interests found ways to benefit themselves from all this, whether as home builders, real-estate investors, or others, and therefore added their voices in support of the open-ended goal of more home ownership through various ways of achieving, or seeming to achieve, affordable housing. Supporters of such policies and programs easily drowned out the voices of those economists and others who increasingly warned of the risky financial arrangements that were behind the statistics on the growing numbers of home buyers that were so triumphantly being paraded as fruits of the crusade for affordable housing and the stamping out of mortgage lending discrimination.

In short, this was a crusade that was feeding on its own successes by its own criteria, and was not likely to stop unless it got stopped.

The housing market collapse dealt a blow to some of the devices that fed the crusade — "creative" financing and lax lending standards, for example — but even the ensuing national crisis did nothing to end the political attractiveness of the goal of making housing affordable by government fiat, rather than by individuals buying or renting housing that was within their own income range. Just as the utter discrediting of public housing projects did not discredit the underlying beliefs that caused such projects to be built, so in this case even the more widely disastrous consequences of the affordable-housing crusade have led only to seeking other ways of carrying on that same crusade, based on the same discredited assumptions and the same disregard of repercussions.

While some congressional Democrats have proposed a moratorium on mortgage foreclosures or allowing judges to change the terms of mortgage contracts, Senate Republicans have proposed "providing government-backed, 4% fixed mortgages to any credit-worthy borrower." What these proposals from politicians of both parties all have in common is an utter absence of any serious consideration of the repercussions in multiple directions of arbitrary government fiats.

Anyone who expected any such consideration of repercussions by most members of either political party would have little chance of avoiding painful disappointments. Certainly few politicians of either party have questioned whether the track record of politicians in the housing market justified more of the same in other markets. Many are in fact eager to extend political intervention into other industries receiving the government "stimulus" or bailout money.

Before we go forward as a nation, it is well to look at where we have been, despite being urged to take drastic actions immediately — and, in fact, especially when being urged to take drastic actions immediately.

Whether we look at the American economy in general or the housing market in particular, we see a history of remarkable progress for generation after generation — and a few recent years when things turned very bad, very quickly.

It has been almost axiomatic, for at least a century, that the American economy produces more output than any other economy in the world. All this is so much taken for granted that no one considers it worth commenting on the fact that 300 million Americans today produce more output than more than a billion people in India or an even larger population in China — indeed, more than these two countries which, put together, have more than eight times the population of the United States. We also produce more than Japan, Germany, Britain, and France combined.

The housing market has, of course, changed drastically in the past few years, as have other things in the economy. But does all this suggest that (1) we need to change some recent bad policies or that (2) we need to restructure a whole economic system that has worked well for centuries? More specifically, does it mean that we need to allow politicians a bigger say in how American businesses are run?

Lenders did not spontaneously begin to lend to people who would not have qualified for loans under the traditional criteria that had evolved out of years of experience in the market. Such risky loans were made under growing pressures from government regulatory agencies and politicians, and even threats of prosecution from the Justice Department if the statistical profiles of borrowers whose loan applications were approved did not match the government’s preconceptions.

The growth in subprime loans was one way of meeting arbitrary quotas for lending to people who did not meet the criteria for loan approval that had prevailed for years. Quota lending was one of many political patches put over problems caused by previous political “solutions.” Often these interventions have focussed on some limited goal, with no real concern about, or even awareness of, the wider ramifications of what they were doing. It is doubtful whether most of the state politicians of the past who enacted laws to prevent branch banking had anything in mind more far-reaching than enabling local banks to avoid having to compete with branches of much bigger and better-known banks. It seems even less likely that these local politicians felt any responsibility for the thousands of bank failures during the Great Depression of the 1930s.

Nor is it likely that the national politicians of our own times, who for years made “home ownership” the touchstone of housing policy, will acknowledge any responsibility for the financial disasters and widespread unemployment today.

What that means is that the voting public must at a minimum be skeptical of political spin, no matter how often it is echoed in the media. What would be even better would be to develop some sense of awareness that everything “is interconnected in the world of prices, so that the smallest change in one element is passed along the chain to millions of others.” It is a caution especially apt when someone is pushing the political crusade of the day as an overriding “good thing,” whether home ownership, mortgage foreclosure mitigation, or a restructuring of the whole economy.

The very idea that the current economic crisis will go to “waste” if it is not used by politicians to rush through a fundamental restructuring of the economy, while the public is too panicked to object, should at the very least give us pause, if not set off alarm bells. From the standpoint of those who seek to remake the economic institutions of America, the worst case scenario would be to have the economy begin visibly recovering on its own before they can get their blueprint for salvation enacted into law. The urgency behind the hasty passage of the “stimulus” legislation was real, even if the reason for that haste was not a swift economic recovery.

Will the history of the New Deal and the Great Depression repeat itself? There is, of course, no way to know in advance. However, history has repeated itself many times before, when past experience has been ignored — and especially when past mistakes have been repeated, often in the name of doing something new and different. Comments made years ago by distinguished British historian Paul Johnson remain very apt in our times:

The study of history is a powerful antidote to contemporary arrogance. It is humbling to discover how many of our glib assumptions, which seem to us novel and plausible, have been tested before, not once but many times and in innumerable guises; and discovered to be, at great human cost, wholly false.

We all use the roads and we all benefit from the common defense of the country. The constitution provides for that. What it does not provide for is the taking of one man's wealth and giving it to another.

This is the only country where our rights come from God not government or man. Government, a man as ruler, or men as a committee do not have the right to redistribute wealth as they deem fit for any reason that can be thought of OR we are not free and are under the tyranny of said government, a ruler, or group of men. If you can't see this then go live in any other country on the world and have it their way.

Charity and taking care of family are good things to do. I don't in government forcing people to pay. That is just tyranny.

You would have to make a convincing argument as to why I would want to live under a tyrannical rule as opposed to being free so knock yourself out. If I wanted to I could move to Cuba or many other places where their society doesn't work to get this wonderful universal non-healthcare you advocate.

Why does it matter? She's not the one being accused of war crimes.
You're just trying to take the spotlight off the Bushies.

Can we throw out the atheists as well?

That would leave the Wiccans, Buddhists, Bahai, Hindu, Jewish, and hundreds (or thousands) of minor religions.

- That's not a bad deal.

No -if- You Believe that Health Care is a Right and therefore a National Health Care System Must Be "Universal" and Cover Everyone :
Then That's What Everyone Must Equally Pay.

Better a National Sales Tax Where All Goods and Services Are Taxed Equally : Then a Wage-Income Tax Where American Made
Domestic Goods are Taxed and Imported {Chinese Made} Goods go Tax Free : The Wage-Income Taxing method would Result in Pricing Domestic Goods 15% Higher than Imported Goods. That's Not Good For American Jobs and Workers. ~ RHF

Canada & The EU & Japan : Do the National
Sales Tax Thingee To There Benefit
-IF- The USA is to have a Level Global Playing Field for US Products : Then the USA also must have a National Sales Tax System to be on an Equal Tax Footing with the 'other'
Producing Nations.
The End-Result is that the US Government still Collects the Same Amount of Total Taxes
-but- From More People Cause Everyone Pays
Equally Their Fair Share and American Products
are Priced More Competitively -wrt- Imported
Products within the USA and have an Equalized
Pricing in the Global Marketplace. Thus Creating
More Jobs for American Workers.
However beyond 5-Times the National Average
Wage-Income {$50K} at about $250K Higher
Wage-Income Earners and Receivers Do Not Pay Their "Fair-Share" of Taxes -so- There is
a PLUS to any National Sales Tax System a Flat Wage Income Tax Equal to the Sales Tax.

Milton Freidman coined the phrase "there's no such thing as a free lunch."
I live by that phrase. Milton Friedman's other philosophies screwed up several economies. People are worried about hyperinflation http://catalog.usmint.gov/webapp/wcs/stores/servlet/CategoryDisplay?catalogId=10001&storeI
d=10001&categoryId=10118&langId=-1&parent_category_rn=10191&top_category=10191

Production of United States Mint American Eagle Gold Proof and Uncirculated Coins has been temporarily suspended because of unprecedented demand for American Eagle Gold Bullion Coins.

Bush's administration more than doubled the money base during his last year in office. Production didn't double, infact the economy was contracting. I wonder where the money is going that we don't already have huge inflation. None the less, I don't blame Obama for this problem. Government spending itself doesn't cause inflation.
Inflation is too much money chasing too few goods. If the money isn't chasing the goods there won't be inflation.

US productive capacity has been sidelined. It's being dismantled.
There isn't enough money in the system to support our production.
As long as we are in a global system where other nations do not value their labor our labor will be devalued. There's no free lunch.

We are becoming a third world nation. The Reagan era is ending.
Milton Friedman was wrong about just about everything except there is no free lunch.

There is no such thing as God. It is childish to believe otherwise.

It is also childish and immoral to support a war machine rationale of common defense and not apply the same kind of logic to using the might of the nation to protect the health of its citizens, especially when every other country in the world does it.

both gary and dave are correct, the man was a one man wrecking crew, who destroyed the demand(wages)of the western worker. today we are reaping what he and other quacks and cranks, have sown.
he destroyed the economy of the u.k., ireland, iceland, the baltics, russia, almost all of south and central america, new zealand, really,
almost the entire world. now its even hitting us.
we are in a deflationary spiral, and it will be a miracle if we can avoid a out right depression. a deflationary spiral is wage deflation, which translates into plummeting demand, something all of miltons polices have led us to.
milton destroyed the dollar.

squawk hyper-inflation hyper-inflation, except, when you are in a wage deflation spiral(plummeting demand, demand is driven by wages):
U.S. consumer prices unchanged in April, sluggish consumer demand limited companies' pricing power

even gas is up quite a bit, but it still does not matter. deflation must be roaring in america for prices to be flat when energy is up so much.
it bodes ill for the new energy bubble though, demand is falling for their products. pretty soon the idiots will have to sell their assets for cash to pay their bills, then oil and gold will plummet again.

U.S. consumer prices unchanged in April
• On Friday May 15, 2009, 8:54 am EDT

WASHINGTON (Reuters) - U.S. consumer prices were unchanged in April as expected, but recorded their largest 12-month drop since 1955, government data showed on Friday, as sluggish consumer demand limited companies' pricing power.

The Labor Department said its closely watched Consumer Price Index was flat after falling 0.1 percent in March. Compared to the same period last year, consumer prices fell 0.7 percent, the biggest 12-month decline since June 1955. In March, the year-over-year CPI rate fell 0.4 percent.

Core prices, which exclude food and energy items, rose a faster 0.3 percent versus a 0.2 percent increase in March. That compared to analysts' prediction for a 0.1 percent increase. Core prices rose 1.9 percent year over year after a 1.8 percent rise in March.

Energy prices fell 2.4 percent after dropping 3.0 percent the previous month. The food index fell 0.2 percent in April, the largest drop since May 2002 and the third straight monthly decline.

The Cycle 24 plage region has finally produced a small sunspot. It has received the number 1017 by NOAA. This area of magnetism remains very quiet.

A CME took place on Wednesday off the eastern limb. The picture is below. The Lasco C2 movie link can be found on the left hand side of the page.

The solar flux reached a high of 74 on Tuesday (75.5 adjusted). As small as that seems, that is the highest it has been in just over 1 year. To learn more about the solar flux and what the "adjusted" solar flux is, click Here correct, you cannot ignore the destruction of wages because you are competing with slave and sweatshop labor, on top of all of the environmental destruction. sooner or later the wage destruction will come home to roost and demand plunges.

how the market fundamentalists can still have a feverish grip on the world is beyond me, they have been complete failures, and have driven just about every country into bankruptcy.

After all that has happened I still believe we are best served by free trade in fair markets. Our economic and military safety is best served by shared interests of the masses and control of the power elite in every nation.

In my younger years I underestimated the impacts of cultural norms and the time it takes to change them. I wonder how many really hear Obama's UofA speech, especially the parts about standards of success. I wonder how many around the world dream of one day becoming the oppressor rather than the opressed, not thinking about the alternative where none are oppressed.

I still think that when China come fully on line things will start getting better even if there are other holdouts. The problem is to find a way to bring them on line without destroying the habitat for humans.

- Actually, it would be NEAT if the world could adopt
- ONE universal, planetwide currency. Hopefully soon!

First the New World Wide Global Currency won't be the US Dollar.

Second with the Adoption of a New World Wide Global Currency the US Dollar will be worth about Five Cents [5¢] in about 3-Years :

Then indeed {in-fact} the USA will be a Third World Country with nothing to Sell on the World Market except Food {Agricultural Goods} .

Americans will be Starving while America's Agricultural Products are Sold around the World to Nations with the New World Wide Global Currency to Pay the Price for them.

Grown in America -will-replace- Made in America

Migration from America will become the Norm for those with enough New World Wide Global Currency to pay for the move to a better place to live.

Amazing!

I wrote a basic, one sentence post, pointing out that pollution travels around the world. Just a scientific fact. Period. Not naming any countries. Not "blaming" anyone.

You responded with the long, twisted, tortuous, convoluted "logic" below, trying to turn it into some kind of political thing.

Whatta piece of work you are. If you would like to meet your worst enemy, all you have to do is look in the mirror.

Rave on!

"Univision Radio off 26%"

"Radio division revenues fell to $67 million in the first quarter.
That's worse than the 12% revenue drop posted by Univision as a whole.
Despite the drop, CEO Joe Uva says their revenues are holding up better than in the general market. Uva says they're also seeing positive signs for their TV upfront sales."

Classic Liberal-Fascist Thinking Equating : Murdering Islam-O-Fascist Killers-of-Infidels are Not the Same as God-Loves-You Christians
Who Condemn the Sin Not The Sinner.

* One Asks You To Knell Down So That
They Can Behead {Murder} You

* While the Other Asks You To Knell Down
So They Can Pray For You With You

- - Would be nice if they both went away
- - and the world would be at peace

The Peace of Communism
The Peace of Socialism
The Peace of Liberal-Fascism

- Can we throw out the atheists as well?

No You Can Pray For Them

- That would leave the Wiccans, Buddhists, Bahai,
- Hindu, Jewish, and hundreds (or thousands) of
- minor religions.

From a Believer's Point of View :

Second Eliminate the Nationalist-Fascists

Third Eliminate the Socialist and Scientific Secularists.

That last tree stump (about four inches diameter, the one I chopped out of the ground yesterday was about twice that diameter) in my back yard I am working on, I think I have about half of it chopped out.

What it is, I use my electric Skilsaw (Skilsaw, registered brand name, trade mark) and I cut a few shallow grooves across the top of the stump.Then I use my old hatchet and my made in Mexico Kobalt sledge hammer that I bought at the Lowes store about this time last year and I beat the hell out of the hatchet head with my sledge hammer.That CLINICALLY INSANE democrap neighbor who lives across the street from me, he said, You are going to fall out back there!

Univision {Spanish} Radio
http://en.wikipedia.org/wiki/Univision_Radio

$67M = 12% which leaves 88% = $491M in Revenue

Which is not-to-bad in today's lousy economy.

Since most radio broadcasters are off over 20%, that's considered an amazing

I still sweep the floors and lug Pelican cases when it's appropriate.

When I owned stations, I even relamped towers and did plumbing repairs.

<You're the HD Radio-shill that wants to destroy analog, with HD <Radio's adjacent-chennel interference.

The issue with HD is not that particular technical aspect... there is no listening to adjacents in the primary signal contours of closer-by stations.
"Interference" is a relative term... there is really no interference if no listening is being disturbed.

"Univision Latest Member Of PIK Club"

"Broadcaster of Mexican soap operas Univision just made credit bubble investors even more sorry to have bought into its GS underwritten March 2007 Pay In Kind (PIK) bond, after disclosing in an 8K filing last night that it would PIK the September 15 interest payment on its 9.75% Senior Notes due 2015, and the in-kind election would extend indefinitely into the future. As reason for the PIK election the company stated the following:

The Company has elected to pay PIK Interest in the amount of approximately $79 million for the interest period commencing on March 15, 2009 to enhance liquidity in light of the current uncertainty in the financial markets.

No surprise there.

This latest PIK election brings the total of toggling PIK bonds to 22 or more than half of all outstanding, as of the 52 PIK notes have been issued, 6 have been redeemed and 2 have filed for bankruptcy, while Harrah’s recently reduced the size of its PIK issue by $350 million. The remaining 22 issues amount to $17.7 billion. The 22 bonds in which investors are likely to never again see any cash payments (if default expectations are any indication) prior to their eventual bankruptcies are the following:"

"Radio -- Bankrupt in 6 to 12 Months"

One reader, a radio executive, claims New York money types are not just talking about the possibility of radio groups defaulting, but the probability.

Some think it can happen within six months to a year.

Radio groups like Cumulus, Univision, Clear Channel, Entercom -- in fact, most of them -- have structures that make it difficult to survive if debt cannot be restructured. And in case you haven't noticed, money is hard to come by these days.

http://insidemusicmedia.blogspot.com/2009/01/radio-bankrupt-in-6-to-12-months.html

I'de rather have analog radio go under, than have it survive along-side of HD Radio, which will eventually destroy analog, anyway. Then, I can go back to my Kaito WRX911 and listen to what is left on SW - LOL!

Moody’s Lists 283 Companies Risking Default: GM, Chrysler, Kodak, Unisys

Wall Street Journal: With 283 companies, the list holds nearly every sector of the economy. The dominant industries on this at-risk list include much of the U.S. auto industry, the casino sector, and many retail chains, newspapers and broadcast-TV and radio-station networks. Energy firms, airlines and restaurant chains appear often.

The Bottom Rung, which Moody’s began compiling a few months ago and will update monthly, represents roughly the riskiest 20% of all companies it tracks, ranked by those with the lowest credit ratings.

Moody’s list consists of companies with B3 rating or lower. That rating is the 16th lowest on Moody’s 21-step ratings system.

Moody’s estimates about 45% of the Bottom Rung companies will default in the next year. Combined these firms have more than $260 billion in bond and bank debt.

Trying to predict or warn about coming defaults means singling out some firms ; a fact that has already put Moody’s in direct confrontation with several companies that say they’re in decent fiscal health. The Spanish-language media company Univision Inc. and Eastman Kodak (EK: 2.47 -0.14 -5.36%) expressed on Monday dissatisfaction for their inclusion on the list saying it wasn’t warranted. Some of the names on the list however, aren’t so surprising, such as GM Corp (GM: 1.09 -0.06 -5.22%) and Chrysler. But some less-obvious names, notes the Journal, like IT giant Unisys CP (UIS: 1.29 +0.02 +1.57%) are also included. One name not on the Bottom Rung, but likely to be added when it is first updated next month, is Clear Channel Comm. (CLWR: 4.59 -0.35 -7.09%), which has already been downgraded by Moody’s.

Reality is just the opposite. There is a God and there is a spiritual side to you.

It is childish to think that in this world you will be left alone.
Defense is something no person can ignore and continue to live.

Even the people building these things know there's no such thing as a free lunch. They use the term enthropy to identify the concept.
None the less we still have air conditioners and heat pumps. Some silly people might only have a focus inside their air conditioned room and think "Yup, there is too a free lunch. It's hot out there and cool
in here and yet I can make it colder by turning this dial."

I have no problem with tariffs used to make trade fair. In order to make sure they are used in that way the tariffs need to be used to mitigate the reason for their application in the nation agaisnt which they are applied.

If you think this constitutes a cogent argument you have a long way to
ho. A simple argument will not take the place of a future plan.

If she knew and didn't say anything, then she is just as guilty as they are.
And for the record, a crime is a crime, regardless of motive.

What politicians do best and that's lie every time they open their mouths. She claims she did not know or understand how the terrorists were being interrogated and has called the CIA congressional debriefers liars. How she continues on as senate majority leader now is beyond me.

She a miserable senator and not a leader in any sense on the word.

KFI is back to trashing their own signal at night and the audio high end is compromised at all times.

WOW! Reading the imbicilic responses in this thread only reinforces where our economy is headed. Fair Warning - 0baMa0's old "New Deal" will make this reccession run deeper and will last far longer than anyone had anticipated.

Good luck people! Your children will certainly need far more than luck. They will be forced to learn the hardest way of all - through death and destruction while on the Socialist's Road to Serfdom.

Remember this little boys and girls, from the experiences of a very old, old world man, Gold is King under the grip of Liberal Fascist Socialists everywhere. The Gold will get you into and out of any country you choose to reside. Better than any passport. Finally - teach your children well - Home School!

Every Free Man for himself - see you on the "other side" - CIAO!

His point was that it's the people paying attention to and manipulating the predictably irrational who are in line for the free lunch.

Ms. Pelosi is worthless. The real criminals Yoo, Addington, Biby [sic], Cheney, etc. are the ones to focus on.

What gives? Trying to destoy analog to force digital adoption?
Thinking that destroying adjacents will give them more ad revenues, then force us Soviet Union style to have to listen to local stations only?

No, they don't. If they did, there would be at least a minimal presence in the ratings of such stations. Give me one example of a first adjacent FM from out of market that is listened to in the market where the main channel is licensed.

I have to agree with you. If traditional (analog) broadcast radio fails, I hope it takes iBiquity digital radio right to hell as well.

And, if that happens - I hope dirt bag Struble, the FCC, Clear Channel, the HD Radio Alliance and the NAB all go down in broadcast history as the reason for the failure.

I say turn the AM BCB over to LPAM (unlicensed) local broadcasting. Let 'em run up to 100W and they shouldn't even cause interference problems with anyone outside the country.

No, it does not. KFI sounds very clean and clear in its home market.

The NRSC research, headed by none other than Bob Orban, proved that a bandwidth of up to around 6 kHz was ideal given today's receivers, and anything more caused deterioration in the audio. The NRSC used a large sample of average listeners using a variety of consumer radios.

Given the noise levels in most metro areas, the usable coverage is going to be right around a square mile. And since, already, use of AM by under-50's is about 10% or less, these stations would not have any listeners at all. If you want good amateur radio, there are thousands of stations on the Internet.

I've seen stations running Part 15 transmitters and antenna systems that got that far and farther. I personally had a transmitter made from a 12BE6 and a longwire (untuned) antenna that could be heard easily 3 miles away (to be fair, the station WAS only a couple blocks from the mouth of the Columbia River, and the listener was on the other side of Young's Bay). I've run 100W into an untuned longwire on 1575 KHz that covered the entire city of Portland and a ways beyond into the county. A real tuned antenna (even a physically short one) would perform much better than either of those.

And why the hell should you design a radio transmitter and audio chain around a cheap POS receiver? There are still plenty of broad bandwidth receivers out there that are capable of reproducing very high fidelity audio from an AM signal. I offer up the Sony SRF-A1, SRF-A100, SRF-42, the Carver TX-11b and TX-11c, many MANY car radios, not to mention there are still a lot of hi-fi, broadband AM tuners used by audiophools and others, which were designed and built in the days when stereo was an AM and FM simulcast thing. There are tons of other broadband AM tuners and receivers out there, don't design the station to the crap, design the station to the possibilities, and let the quality of what comes out be determined not by design to the lowest common denominator, but the amount the end user decides to spend on the receiver... I don't care at all for the sound of modern radio stations with their over processing, low bandwidth, low fidelity (including on FM... processing DOES distort the original signal, hence lowers the fidelity).

Don't know why I'm even wasting my effort here. You and your ilk, bean counters, don't care about the quality of the end product, just how to make money off of it. You don't care about the listener, only highly suspect pollings and iffy numbers. Don't give me any of the garbage about "proven statistics", the only accurate poll is one with 100% of the subject class being polled, not 3% or some smaller percentage.

As I said, "given the noise levels in most metro areas..." we have a situation where it takes 10 to 15 mV/m to overcome the basic noise. A longwire with 100 watts on 1575 with an average (let's say 5) ground conductivity will be inefficient and probably have a 10 mv/m out for a couple of miles, maybe 3 or so.

It does not take many homes that have replaced every bulb in ever socket with a CFL, plus running a computer or two, and maybe some light dimmers for the porch light, to kill radio reception on AM at all but the most intense levels.

When WalMart and similar retailers pick one vendor over another for a $0.05 difference in unit cost, nobody is going to produce good AM sections any more, since the retailers know that most people would not even notice if no AM band were in the radios to begin with.

I care a lot about the listener, and design programming that is based entirely on listener feedback derived from conversations with thousands of listeners a year... actually, hundreds of thousands. Everything the people I work with do is intended to please and satisfy listeners, because we talk to listeners and find out what they want.

We can't make money unless we do that, as we would not have listeners.

And, of course, as on little example, when I signed my first FM on the air, there was no other FM for more than a thousand miles in any direction. We went stereo in 6 months, and moved to a transmitter site at over 4000 meters AMSL within the year, without making any money... but I wanted to start on the road to FM, and built a half dozen of 'em in the next 3 years. So much for making money... the year was 1966, by the way.

< You don't care about the listener, only highly suspect > pollings and iffy numbers.

Unfortunately, you don't realize that all statistical samples have a very predictable margin of error. The only need is to keep the margin of error within a range that is not significant for the use made of the data. A coulple of percent may be critical in a space shuttele, but in buying advertising, it is irrelevant... because there are so many other variables from one day to the next that statistical error is the least of the issues.

> Don't give me any of the garbage about "proven statistics",

As I explain below, if you consistently get the same results with a small sample of a univers, why would you want to spend millions on a larger one that adds nothing to usefulness and reliability?

<the only accurate poll is one with 100% of the subject class > being polled, not 3% or some smaller percentage.

A 100% "poll" is called a Census. It's not a poll if it surveys everyone. In any case, even the US Government can't do a Census at more than a 10 year interval... it costs too much. And never mind that it's been demonstrated that a well done poll would be more accurate than a census, any way.

A poll can be proven by means of a replication study. If you do the same sample size over and over and get the same results, you would not gain anything by surveying more people.

The survey size for radio ratings in Los Angeles, population 12,000,000 (6+) is 3,000. The reason it is not larger is that nothing is gained by making it larger, except cost.

Recovery of stollen goods is also "redistribution of wealth".
None the less his point wasn't about promises but actions.

There's no such thing as a free lunch. Just because you didn't pay for it doesn't mean it was free. Milton's use of the adage was different than mine. Milton's use was more along the lines that if one is offered something for free one should check the fine print. Mine is to observe shifted costs.

I don't support the notion of a right to healthcare but I think preventitive healthcare is cheaper than emergency care that could have been prevented and if we are going to pay for emergency care that could have been prevented then we should reduce our costs by preventing the problem in the first place.

Brenda's right - ilk, such as you, are the main reasons why radio is dying. All you think about is "billing", you bean-counter, not about quality programming and serving the listeners! BTW - today, I trashed HD Radio's Facebook page, with links to my blog, and comments to Clear Channel in Rockville, Md., who created the page, about that little publicity stunt giving Obama's Press Secretary HD radios. I tracked them today with Google Analytics and they first linked to my blog through Facebook, then through a post I made on Endgadget about iBiquity's Armband MP3 player, then they searched on Google for "HD Radio Farce", then they finally linked to it directly, for a total of 4 seperate visits - the Rockville office has visited my blog 43 times! I'm only 20 minutes away from Rockville - if you know anyone there, tell them that I would be willing to meet for lunch, and take down my blog for a sizeable price - LOL!

Recovery of stollen goods is also "redistribution of wealth".
None the less his point wasn't about promises but actions.

There's no such thing as a free lunch. Just because you didn't pay for it doesn't mean it was free. Milton's use of the adage was different than mine. Milton's use was more along the lines that if one is offered something for free one should check the fine print. Mine is to observe shifted costs.

Right -- words mean what you want them to mean, no more and no less.

I don't know which of the two of you is more incoherent.

I have no specific idea, but there is some reason why you, after several years, continue to accuse me of things that are totally verifiable to the contrary.... it's either that, or you are crazy. I tend to suspect it is both.

3307. WWV - 5 frequencies

Checking WWV this morning I was able to hear them on all five frequencies, 2.5, 5, 10, 15 and 20 MHz all at the same time.

The way conditions have been of late it's been difficult to get them on both 2.5 and 20 MHz at the same time.

Hopefully, propagation will finally improve.

No. The CIA timeline indicates that the EIT were started in the summer of 2002 on Zubayda, and claim Rep. Pelosi was first notified of the EIT in September.

Regardless, as far as I'm concerned she can go on trial with the rest of them. If we sweep this under the rug the USA will never have any moral authority again.

KFI sounds like shit. They have no bass. They have no highs. It sounds like the antenna system is too high Q or something. Lots of carrier shift as well. KNX sounds 100% better.

Why did you let this happen? These are Part 15 unintentional radiators and they are not allowed to cause harmful interference. You idiots got so drunk on FM that you failed to protect AM, back when you had a chance.

There was a time when AM sounded good, when flamethrowers had regional audiences, and when rural listeners could hear something besides Limbaugh and George Noory.

Corporations are incapable of running radio stations. It needs to be a labor of love, not inextricably linked to a maximized bottom line, benefitting only a few shareholders to the detriment of the wider audience at large.

So what's going to happen, they go bankrupt and then there is no more BCB radio? Is that what you're saying is going to happen? That would

How can that be when the U.S. economy is far, far and away larger than ANY third world country by far far far.

0baMa0 Tse Dung has expanded government spending faster in the first six months of his diktatorship than President Bush did during his 8 (eight) year presidency. Irrational 0baMa0 exhuberance has erased many brain cells.

The U.S. economy is till today, right now, this moment, larger than the E.U. Larger than China. Larger than India.
AND almost larger than China and India COMBINED! That's over 3,000,000,000 people competing with 300,000,000 people.
That is a factor of 10:1! AND to top it all off, the U.S. blows China and India, any third world nation, out of the water in energy efficiency.
China produces more green house gases per GDP than the U.S. by far, BY FAR.

Don't tell the Liberal Fascisti Socialist Greenies that their anti-Capitalist propaganda lies are a well known facade.
They are anti-American, anti-Freedom and Pro Neo-Commie.

There is not one successful Socialist/Communist economy in the history of the world. The Neo-Commies can never erase this fact:
http://www.globalmuseumoncommunism.org/

There is a very good reason why people risk, and have lost their lives in attempts to escape Liberal Fascist/Socialist/Communist regimes the world over.
Nazi Germany,USSR, Cuba, China, North Korea, Burma, Vietnam, Laos, Cambodia,...

Free Markets = Free Choice = FREEDOM! Neo-Commies can never compete with that!

Because employees in Blue States pay more State and local taxes thus paying less Federal taxes. Therefor, Blue States receive less Fedaral Tax money.

Yea, I know. I drove by a while ago, and Arbitron is right off Rt. 32.
Arbitron has visited 8 times. iBiquity's green windowed building is new and sits right off Rt. 175. It's quite ironic that their building flys an American flag, yet they are destroying AM radio, a National Treasure of decades, and they are about to destroy FM, too.

Bullshit - I listen to AM every night, and only have to worry about the TV and one dimmer switch. The computer upstairs has no affect. I used to listen to WLW and WBBM, but WLW is trashed by WOR, and I believe that WJR is affecting WBBM. Either WJR, or WABC had their IBLOCK on last night. I hope that all of these fuckers go under.

40 stations in LA have good signals... about 10 AMs cover the market comparably, and do nowhere nearly as well.

KFI has better ratings than most because it has more appealing programming.

The new KFI tower uses a very low Q ATU and is reasonably flat on the sides.

Given that only about 200 AMs are viable in the top 100 markets, most AMs were killed by lack of coverage well before the noise levels started climbing. The really good signals tend to overcome this noise floor, and don't care...the bad signals can't win anyway.

It has not been since the late 40's / early 50's that bigger signals had any kind of regional audiences. A few AMs get listeners in adjacent markets even today, but so do many FMs.

And you hear Limbaug and Noory in every market because that is what gets audience for the one format that still works somewhat on AM.

Silly... that's the local radio operation, which would have no ties whatsoever with iBiquity. Clear Channel's HQ is in San Antonio.

There is no "Rockville" office. Clear has some local DC market stations, which do not have anything to do with relations with iBiquity (or anything else corporate). You are simply chasing black helicopters.

How am I going to cut that big heavy ass bare naked Chevrolet one ton truck frame in my back yard into several pieces so I can load those pieces into my 1983 Dodge van and haul that crap to the scrap iron yard?

I reckon I will get my big old electric right angle grinder and grind a few grooves and then whop at it with my hacksaw.It's worth a try anyway.

We call them cutting torches here too.The hoses on mine were so old and rotten I threw them away.I can rent an oxycetelyne cutting torch rig, but I hate to rent anything.

We just now got a nice shower/rain here, that lets out using my electric grinder.So, I sat on the red cedar bench seat on my front porch and trimmed my toenails with my wire side cutters.That beautiful divorced gal next door stepped out to her van for something.She almost tripped over their lawnmower in there driveway.I says, Watch out there skid row! cuhulin

3369. An Unsustainable Trend in Debt [D'oh!]

This week, the federal government published two important reports on long-term budgetary trends. They both show that we are on an unsustainable path that will almost certainly result in massively higher taxes. By 2016 we will have to fund Social Security out of general revenues, as the surplus we now have will be gone. And there are no trust funds. They are a myth. It as if I wrote myself a check for $2 trillion and then declared I was worth $2 trillion. The money is just not there. Social Security makes Bernie Madoff look like a small-time crook.

And Medicare is in far worse shape. For those with the stomach, you can read Bruce Bartlett's analysis at http://www.forbes.com/2009/05/14/taxes-social-security-opinions-columnists-medicare.html. He estimates that taxes will have to go up by 81% if we are to pay the obligations as they now stand.

Now that is unsustainable. It won't happen. And as the saying goes, if something is unsustainable, at some point it will stop. No getting around it. Long before we get there, change you will not like will be forced on the US.

The following headline caught my eye: "Obama Says US Long-Term Debt Load is 'Unsustainable.'" Yet they announced a $1.8 trillion deficit, which is really going to be at least $2 trillion, and are getting ready to pass health-care programs that will mean at least a trillion in deficits for as long as one can project.

How will they pay for it? Even getting rid of the Bush tax cuts will only produce a few hundred billion a year, which is nowhere near enough. They project much lower medical costs in the future, because THEY ASSUME they are going to figure out ways to cut costs and make medical care more efficient. As if no one has ever tried that. [Indeed - LOL!]

Yes, there are some savings on the margin; but the only way you really cut costs is to ration health care [Liberal Fascists will decide who lives and who dies - HEIL HITLER!], especially health care in the last year of life, which is about 30% of health-care expenses. That is going to be very tough in the US. But when faced with a real budget crisis, the choices are going to be stark. And that crisis is coming if we do not control spending.

You cannot propose massive increases in spending without either creating crushing debt that the markets will simply not allow, pushing interest rates much higher and really slowing growth and hurting the economy. It is a simple fact that you cannot increase the debt-to-GDP ratio without limit. [D'oh!]

We found the limit on personal and corporate debt this past year. We pushed the limits until the system crashed. And now the US government wants to basically do the same thing. They are planning to see where the limits on government debt-to-GDP will be. Unless cooler and more rational heads in the Democratic Party prevail, this is not going to be pretty. Sometime in the middle of the next decade we will hit the wall, and it will make the current crisis pale in comparison.

THE ONLY WAY TO SOLVE THE PROBLEM IS TO GROW GDP MORE RAPIDLY THAN DEBT, and for that to happen you have to have policies which are shaped for the growth of the economy or massive savings by consumers. And right now we have neither. Cap and trade is hugely anti-growth. So are high corporate taxes, and Obama is proposing to effectively raise corporate taxes by closing loopholes for income earned outside the US. Much better would be to lower the overall corporate level to a competitive world rate and then require the offshore income to be taxed. A lower rate would actually increase tax revenues.

Looming PROTECTIONISM worldwide IS A PROBLEM. (See the article at http://www.msnbc.msn.com/id/30758018.) Towns in Ontario, Canada with a population totalling 500,000 have effectively barred US contractors from doing business with them, in retaliation for job losses stemming from US protectionism in the stimulus plan. That movement is spreading. A US steel mill with 600 union jobs will have to close down because its owners are not US-based, and thus it is not technically a US supplier. They are losing jobs to US-owned mills -- but those are US jobs. The insanity goes on and on. As I have written for many years, the one thing that really gets me worried is protectionism. That can make this very significant recession into a depression quicker than you can imagine. Bad ideas have bad consequences.

All in all, we face some very difficult decisions, not just in the US but all over the developed world. Ironically, the less developed nations will have fewer problems and on a relative basis will likely grow much faster than the developed world. But, multi-trillion-dollar deficits and massive new programs are not the right answer.

Y'all better start making lots and lots of babies to support your old age. Or else face the extinction of yourself, your language, culture and Freedoms, like in Europe, to baby making machines like Islam-0-Fascists and Mexicans. Soon your children will be facing devastating wars like humanity has never seen before or complete surrender into slavery.

When the daily data was broken out for the Northridge quake, the #1 station was KFWB, followed by KHJ and then KNX. KFI was still building back then, so not as much a news factor.

When the altruistic stations discover that they all got audience levels similar to those of KPFK (51st in the ratings) and have no income as they can not charge enough for their spots given the low audience, they will do exactly the same thing commercial stations do today.

Sales Tax Thingee To There Benefit
-IF- The USA is to have a Level Global Playing Field for US Products : Then the USA also
must have a National Sales Tax System to be on an Equal Tax Footing with the 'other'
Producing Nations.
The End-Result is that the US Government still Collects the Same Amount of Total Taxes
-but- From More People Cause Everyone Pays
Equally Their Fair Share and American Products
are Priced More Competitively -wrt- Imported
Products within the USA and have an Equalized
Pricing in the Global Marketplace. Thus Creating
More Jobs for American Workers.
However beyond 5-Times the National Average
Wage-Income {$50K} at about $250K Higher
Wage-Income Earners and Receivers Do Not Pay Their "Fair-Share" of Taxes -so- There is
a PLUS to any National Sales Tax System a Flat Wage Income Tax Equal to the Sales Tax.

That's a short fall of $50B per Year in US Federal Spending in the State of California and that results in $5B of State Tax Revenue.

This has been going on for 12 or more Years and is one of the Reasons for California's current Budget Problems.

12 Years X $50B = $600B Ripoff by the US Federal Government.

12 Years X $5B = $60B in California State
Taxes not being able to be Collected.

Now that's baloney. The analog frequency response has been limited so they can broadcast the crap IBOC signal. They don't sound as good any time day or night because of this and I find it hard to believe there is no fading distortion in the metro LA area. They really sound terrible when this happens.

What's with the carrier shift anyway? That must a part of the wubba,

I was speaking of the area where the quake occured, LA County. KFWB was the clear favorite and did a much better job than KNX. KHJ was the only Spanish language station on the air following the quake, and much of the 40% of the market that is Hispanic listened to them... they lost 8 seconds during the quake.

The NRSC papers are searchable, and the evidence is quite convincing. In fact, bandwidth much over 6.5 kHz actually makes most receivers sound worse... the ideal being around 5.5 kHz to 6.5 kHz.

Yeah, with the IBOC on that's true but with just the analog signal it's not. I have the luxury of knowing since I have a receiver that will go out to 16KHz.

Why would I need a degree? I was recruited out of college by an NYSE-listed company as a VP, and since I was taking such an eclectic selection of courses I would not have qualified for any degree field anyway, I ended up with a custom-designed curriculum.

The NRSC study had nothing to do with HD... it was based on finding the optimal bandwidth for AM with today's environment and today's receivers in analog mode. The feeling had been that the NRSC 10 kHz standard was, indeed, too wide for the best sounding AM operation... and they were right.

Well, in my own tests I'd say about 8KHz is best. This what I use most of the time for BCBAM and SW.

What possible benefit would a piece of paper be? You are so straight-laced

A little more time may see people give up on KFI. I have and I expect others will also.

I've got an 8 kHz filter in my R7.

However, I would imagine the bandpass of your receiver is better than the stuff sold at WalMart and Bed, Bath and Beyond... and that's what most home radios are like today. Most, the study found, were down 10 db at 3.9 kHz, so wide bandwith at the transmitted end ended up causing apparent distortion at the receiver.

You have yet to prove that was not so. Hey, here is another person you are free to call to verify... Edward Seaton, owner of the Manhattan Mercury newspaper in Kansas and head of the five-generation old Seaton Publishing Company. Edward was the head of the Pulitzer Board, a past president of the Interamerican Press Association... and a Fulbright Scholar in Ecuador in the 60's. He saw my stations dozens of times, and we dined and went to movies and other activities together for the time he was in Ecuador.

Try a search on "Edward Seaton" +"Manhattan Mercury" or on "Pulitzer" and you will find him. Call, and ask about the gringo who owned stations in Ecuador when he was there. I think Edward is about as reliable and credible source as you would ever find.

What do you think Ace? If you are just program listening on a good signal 8 KHz is where I keep it on the RX340. On the Drake I use the widest 6 kHz with the passband at 3:00 or 9:00 O'clock and on the AOR7030+ I'll use the 7 kHz filter with the passband at about 3 kHz.

Well, the passband is brick wall DSP on one radio but the other two are low frequency LC type with good filter shape.

It depends. For what I normally am looking for (DX) I use the 3 kHz filter, but on occassion, I'll use the 6 or 8.

I don't have to use the R7 all that much, on any given day I'm just loafing around with the R8, though I do cycle through all the receivers every two weeks or so.

For a really tiny radio (AM band only) the vintage Standard Micronic Ruby's are about 1/8th the size of cigarette pack.

My SR H436 outperforms all other shirt pocket transistors I've used (a lot), and runs cheaper than those that use those modern 9volt types, thank to Wumpus:

http://www.oldradioworld.de/srh436.htm

That outer cardboard wrapper is completely unnecessary.

Just stack two naked (size 675) hearing aid batteries and a brass (size 6-32) bolt/washers/nut spacer wrapped with a cardboard tube (or duct tape instead any cardboard at all), to make the permanent spacer wider so it won't roll around.

Ruby's look cool!

In previous groups you've agreed that AM hd is, in your words, "dreadful". You've also made many other negative leaning statements concerning iBiquity digital but we won't go into these right now.

Now that you've made your real feelings public, how can you defend digital radio at all in its current dismal state? Really Eduardo, you seem to be playing both sides as it suits you. Have I missed something?

You've certainly missed the fact that 'Eduardo' (the phony Hispanic) is full of BS (Bryant Sierra) that he dispenses depending upon which way the wind is blowing.

Eduardo is just a silly bean-counter that is close to retirement, and couln't really give a shit about radio, anymore. Univision is into HD Radio, so Eduardo is just drinking Bob "the Scammer Booble" Struble's Cool-Aid. I wonder, after iBiquity fails, if Bob will go back to being an NSA contractor, since his previous companies were located in Linthicum/Hanover, Md.? Bob's track-record isn't very good. I wonder, what Bob would do if iBiquity got investigated? I'm also wondering, hmmmmm, Vicki is pretty hot...

FM HD sounds good, and has practical applications such as narrowcasting, ethnic services, etc. And it really does not interfere with any other usable service... so why not let it continue? It's likely that the recession has reduced or eliminated HD's chances of long term viability, but it does not hurt to leave it on.

you mean when western capitalists sign free trade agreements with communist china, and allow the communists to own 51% of the factory.
and where the western capitalists turn over all of their manufacturing secrets, and proprietary property to take advantage of slave/sweatshop labor, and then import those communists/socialists products into the u.s.a., that then undercuts american production, and drives america deep into debt for their own short term gain.

Interesting. Leykis gets very little audience, Rush reaches nearly 20 million a week.

Gee, and even with just a GED, I can tell who is being addressed in a nested

So do analog FM's SCA services and FMeXtra - HD Radio is a farce, and is only meant to jam adjacents.

I don't think that is the way it works... I simply had to get a US diploma or equivalent when I decided to go back to school, since my Ecuadorian bachillerato was not accredited in the US.

You are absolutely laughable! Both AM-HD and FM-HD jam adjacents, even in protected contours. Wait until the 10db power increase for FM-HD, then talk to me! Consumers have spoken - get over it!

You've got to admit you've had a change of heart. Going from a hard-core proponent to a very reduced and subdued "FM HD sounds good" is nothing short of amazing. And, in your case, trashes any credibility you might have had. But it's good that you've become honest.

To refute your "FM HD sounds good" statement - The difference in sound quality is insignificant. Especially when you consider that the vast majority of radio listeners today couldn't correctly chose whether they were hearing an analog or digital signal. In fact, I'd be willing to wager that you couldn't either. I'd invite you over and do a fascinating demonstration to prove it to you but you scare me, therefore, I won't and you probably wouldn't anyway.

The extra channels and services point is dead. Consumers are saturated and don't care and most broadcasters don't have the resources to support them - thank God.

As a good friend of mine recently said. I'd rather see radio completely fail then to see iBiquity digital succeed. I'm going to continue, in my small and limited way, to see that iBiquity fails big time.

SCA services are very low-fi (they use limited bandwidth), and FMeXtra has priced itself into extinction... nobody will touch it.

I said previously that the current economy was likely going to set HD back enough so that it would lose its window of opportunity. There is a contraction in the economy at all level; consumers will not buy new home radios nor will they buy new cars with HD. By the time the economy recovers, we will be that much closer to WiMax and other delivery systems.

There are plenty of things on the "old" agenda that are not going to happen due to the economy, and HD is just one of them.

We have done the same comparisons ourselvs, so no thanks. The issue is that a station music do separate processing for the digital stream to the HD gear, or there will be no gain and considerable destruction of the digital audio. When done right by good engineers, there is a considerable difference that anyone can hear. First in noticability is that since the noise floor is much lower, more dynamic range can be preserved. Second, the nasty 75 us FM analog preemphasis curve does not apply to digital, so there is another area of gain.

Oddly, there is a rush to rent Hd2s by services ranging from Hindia and other Indian languages to missing formats like contemporary Hispanic Christian and Tejano, and they are driving receiver sales.

Since the investments are already made, and nearly all viable Top 100 market FMs have HD, they will stay in place, and we will se what the end game is. AM, as a band, is dead, so, short of having AM radios spit out gold coins, nothing is going to help AM stations...

Not to say those scenarios don't happen because from posts people have made I am sure they do. I guess I am just lucky in that my monitor does literally nothing to my radios, nor does any switches or dimmers or lights in the house. Sometimes it makes me wonder if many of those stories aren't bull crap, but why would someone make them up? Just guess I am lucky and nothing interfers with my radios or antennas.

'Eduardo' is a fabrication of Gleason's. He began using that schtick circa 2000 and claims now to be Hispanic.

Eduardo - though you were an asshole with me yearssssss ago in here (under another monicker), telling me I didn't hear a station that apparently you could never log, though it was proven I DID hear the station.<ahem> I will ask you this question and you can look into your crystal ball and give me the answer for the archives.

Are you trying to say or are others, that there will be "literally" no
AM radio stations? I will paint the picture so there is no misunderstanding in what I am asking. Will there be day, and if yes -
- when in approx. years - - that I will literally turn on the switch to my GE P-780 (Thank you Brenda Ann) and there will be just simply nothing but static?

Steve, not to doubt you, because I vaguely remember the threads or something close to it. But can you give the link (via archives) when that soap opera went down? (the Eduardo is a fabrication of Gleason's thing) I would like to refresh my memory. If you can't, no problem.

Heck, I can't recall exactly. One would have to search the archives.

I was told that he "literally" doesn't crap (meaning Obama), can you believe that? The gentleman who said that (black guy) literally said that and didn't flinch, like he believed it, no hint in body language or facial features while he said it. I did nothing but listen and shake his hand and say "take care" and walked away and rolled my eyes.
I wonder what medication he was on? Obamanax maybe?

Now that did make me laugh. Many epic threads over that antenna, not the radio. Mr. Lauterbach (I think I spelled his name right) actually sent me some literature on that antenna and some of his other products years ago.

Actually, for some reason, I don't remember why....he sent me an antenna, which I appreciated. Still have it, it's mounted underneath my deck and served me well for my radio in the living room. He had/has many nice (IMO) antenna configurations housed into either reels or some other setup. I wonder if he's still in business? I forget the name of his company.

That is one good looking transistor, somewhat reminds me of a transisitor radio that I gave to a good friend. Is it selective? Not sensitive, but selective? Audio?

Not to say those scenarios don't happen because from posts people have made I am sure they do. I guess I am just lucky in that my monitor
does literally nothing to my radios, nor does any switches or dimmers or lights in the house. Sometimes it makes me wonder if many of those stories aren't bull crap, but why would someone make them up? Just guess I am lucky and nothing interfers with my radios or antennas.

SCR dimmers and some fluorescents DO generate a LOT of RF noise. Ditto some monitors (CRT and plasma, especially) and switching mode power supplies.
It's pretty much a crapshoot as to which ones are bad and which are good.

Are you trying to say or are others, that there will be "literally" no
AM radio stations? I will paint the picture so there is no misunderstanding in what I am asking. Will there be day, and if yes -
- when in approx. years - - that I will literally turn on the switch to my GE P-780 (Thank you Brenda Ann) and there will be just simply nothing but static?

That could someday be the case during the day, but I doubt it. There will always be non-profits that will stay on the air since they don't count ad revenues. Among these will be public radio stations, religious stations, etc., and if the band were that empty, you can bet there would be an uptake on pirate activities.

Cathay Pacific Airways will increase the number of flights it offers to three key destinations - Paris, Shanghai and Jakarta - in response to sustained customer demand.
The service enhancements will be introduced in the airline’s summer schedule, which comes into effect on March 29. An additional four flights a week will be added to and from Paris - departing Hong Kong every Monday, Tuesday, Thursday and Saturday the airline will provide a double-daily service to the French capital.

What is your measure of "more state and local taxes"?
Do you understand that per capita is the only meaningful meansure for comparison between states? Otherwise you're wrong on the face of it because California and New York,

two blue states, pay the most federal taxes due to their population alone.

The figures above show states that pay more per capita in federal taxes than they recieve are usually blue and those who recieve more than they pay are usually red.

I don't know but suspect the highest cost of living states are mostly blue states and the lowest red so even in absolute numbers the red states are welfare queens. Rather than being rugged individualists the red states are the tax whores who can't make it on their own.

The sexualization of torture from the top basically turned Abu Ghraib and Guanti¿½namo Bay into an organized sex-crime ring in which the trafficked sex slaves were US-held prisoners. Looking at the classic S and M nature of some of this torture, it is hard not to speculate that someone setting policy was aroused by all of this. And Phillipe Sands' impeccably documented Torture Team: Rumsfeld's Memo and the Betrayal of American Values, now proves that sex crime was authorized and, at least one source reports, eroticized: Diane Beaver, the Staff Judge Advocate at Guantanamo who signed off on many torture techniques, told Sands about brainstorming sessions that included the use of "sexual tension," which was "culturally taboo, disrespectful, humiliating and potentially unexpected."

I imagine it has something to do with KNSD Master Control being in the basement at 3400 W. Olive, Burbank. The KNBC guys also run channel 11 in San Francisco. There are like 10 people total in that department, running all the NBC affiliates in 3 cities (at least).

That I don't know. They are similar to switch-mode power supplies, which as you probably know, can be very quiet or very rude. I imagine it has to do with a couple of 2 penny capacitors strategically placed or something equally mundane. I would not buy anything GE makes, after having worked for them.

Please know: I am Black; I grew up in the segregated South. I did not vote for Barack Obama; I wrote in Ron Paul's name as my choice for president. Most importantly, I am not race conscious. I do not require a Black president to know that I am a person of worth, and that life is worth living. I do not require a Black president to love the ideal of America.

I cannot join you in your celebration. I feel no elation. There is no smile on my face. I am not jumping with joy. There are no tears of triumph in my eyes. For such emotions and behavior to come from me, I would have to deny all that I know about the requirements of human flourishing and survival – all that I know about the history of the United States of America , all that I know about American race relations, and all that I know about Barack Obama as a politician. I would have to deny the nature of the "change" that Obama asserts has come to America.

Most importantly, I would have to abnegate my certain understanding that you have chosen to sprint down the road to serfdom that we have been on for over a century. I would have to pretend that individual liberty has no value for the success of a human life. I would have to evade your rejection of the slender reed of capitalism on which your success and mine depend. I would have to think it somehow rational that 94 percent of the 12 million Blacks in this country voted for a man because he looks like them (that Blacks are permitted to play the race card), and that they were joined by self-declared "progressive" whites who voted for him because he doesn't look like them.

I would have to wipe my mind clean of all that I know about the kind of people who have advised and taught Barack Obama and will fill posts in his administration – political intellectuals like my former colleagues at the Harvard University's Kennedy School of Government.

I would have to believe that "fairness" is equivalent of justice. I would have to believe that man who asks me to "go forward in a new spirit of service, in a new service of sacrifice" is speaking in my interest. I would have to accept the premise of a man that economic prosperity comes from the "bottom up," and who arrogantly believes that he can will it into existence by the use of government force. I would have to admire a man who thinks the standard of living of the masses can be improved by destroying the most productive and the generators of wealth.

Finally, Americans, I would have to erase from my consciousness the scene of 125,000 screaming, crying, cheering people in Grant Park, Chicago irrationally chanting “Yes We Can!” Finally, I would have to wipe all memory of all the times I have heard politicians, pundits, journalists, editorialists, bloggers and intellectuals declare that capitalism is dead – and no one, including especially Alan Greenspan, objected to their assumption that the particular version of the anti-capitalistic mentality that they want to replace with their own version of anti-capitalism is anything remotely equivalent to capitalism.

So you have made history, Americans. You and your children have elected a Black man to the office of the president of the United States, the wounded giant of the world. The battle between John Wayne and Jane Fonda is over – and that Fonda won. Eugene McCarthy and George McGovern must be very happy men. Jimmie Carter, too. And the Kennedys have at last gotten their Kennedy look-a-like. The self-righteous welfare statists in the suburbs can feel warm moments of satisfaction for having elected a Black person.

So, toast yourselves: 60s countercultural radicals, 80s yuppies and 90s bourgeois bohemians. Toast yourselves, Black America. Shout your glee Harvard, Princeton, Yale, Duke, Stanford, and Berkeley. You have elected not an individual who is qualified to be president, but a Black man who, like the pragmatist Franklin Roosevelt, promises to – Do Something! You now have someone who has picked up the baton of Lyndon Johnson’s Great Society. But you have also foolishly traded your freedom and mine – what little there is left – for the chance to feel good.

There is nothing in me that can share your happy obliviousness.

I think they move up and down the spectrum and it is Sunday today.
Listen on a week day and they never bring any religious overtones.

capitalism is a system that can comfortably reside with in any system. its a system where you can leave your brains, morals, and what make us humans behind. and its always doomed to failure if its left onto its own
what really makes capitalism work, is when you use your brains, morals, and what makes us a whole human being with all of the usual goodies such as empathy, pity, remorse, ethics, and yes, morals.

At the end of April the Obama administration tested its ability to take direct control of the US financial system. The test was a success. There is a revolution underway which would impress Chavez or Castro. If you were like most people, you did not realize it happened.

3506. Eduardo - The window of opportunity never was for iBiquity

To Blame the demise of iBiquity digital radio on the economy is disingenuous. It never got off the ground - even in previously better times. The window of opportunity never was. Economic status has little to do with it but now you have a convenient out, don't you. Automakers and electronics manufacturers have always been reluctant, for good reason – consumers don't want it. Why would any manufacture invest developmental dollars on such an unwanted scheme? Sony lost millions on it before the economy tanked. Using the economy for an excuse is bogus. And that's part of the problem – proponents of iBiquity digital radio can't seem to understand or even tell the truth. (I don't like to refer to it as "HD Radio" as that gives it an undeserving credibility.)

Struble is so dumb that he surveyed people to see what they were thinking. But he was really attempting to find a way to exploit his defective digital radio scheme. The purpose of a survey is to ultimately give people what they want - not find a way to force-feed a product on consumers. I'm sure the survey backfired on him.

Ibiquity has slanted statistics in its favor for years. Struble made a claimed a year back that he was "converting" stations a rate of one per day coercing the radio world into thinking his digital radio scheme was a done deal – this is the standard - get on board or else. Radios with low powered do-everything-chips never materialized thus (to his major irritation) he couldn't force-feed his scheme into cell phones and other devices. His comparison of iBiquity digital radio to the early days of FM is just plain manipulation to those of us who understand radio and its history. These statements and false claims and other tactics made him look foolish as well arrogant to us little people.

People do Internet searches for information on products and services. It can make or break you. Therefore, I'm doing my small part helping the World understand that iBiquity is a bad company and digital radio is a bad deal.

Huffington was born Arianna Stassinopoulos on May 15, 1950 in Athens, Greece.

Her mother Elli was active in the Communist-led Greek resistance movement during World War II. Her journalist father Constantine edited the resistance newspaper Paron Arianna studied thoroughly debunked Keynesian economics. Her tutor was the Maoist economist Joan Robinson.

In search of spirituality, Arianna read the collected works of psychoanalyst Carl G. Jung. She introduced Levin to an organization called Insight whose rituals encouraged followers to act out their fantasies.

The future Arianna Huffington also became a disciple of the Indian guru Bhagwan Shree Rajneesh, whose cult practiced open sexual intercourse among its members, and with its leader, as a central sacrament of their faith. This cult later moved to America’s West Coast and attempted to take over an Oregon town. Bhagwan devotees were directed to purchase what eventually became 139 white Rolls Royces for their leader. As Judith Miller and two other New York Times investigative reporters recounted in their 2001 book Germs: Biological Weapons and America’s Secret War, the Rajneesh cult spread potentially lethal Salmonella bacteria in this town. Rajneesh cult members did this as a way of infecting and incapacitating town residents on election day so that cult voters could win control of the local government.

“It was like knowing there was another dimension to life and that I wanted to experience it, knowing that nothing else mattered as much,” Huffington later told Stephanie Mansfield of the Washington Post about this time of her life. “It took me over completely.”

Ja! HEIL HITLER!

While visiting California she met the man who remains her spiritual guide to this day, John-Roger (Hinkins), founder of a New Age church apparently spun off from the ECKANKAR cult teachings of Paul Twitchell. John-Roger’s Movement of Spiritual Inner Awareness (MSIA) is a faith based on “the Mystical Traveler, a spiritual consciousness that exists throughout all levels of God’s creation.”

In the United States, Arianna dated a variety of men. Among them were real estate tycoon and U.S. News & World Report Editor-in-Chief Mort Zuckerman and former California Governor Jerry Brown. Dole Pineapple CEO David Murdoch and his wife then introduced her to Texas oil millionaire Michael Huffington.

In 1997 the Huffingtons divorced, with Arianna receiving an undisclosed but large financial settlement in the seven-figure range. This event became a watershed in her orientation and choice of political bedfellows.

“She’s a chameleon,” Michael Huffington told the New York Times to describe his former wife. Since their divorce, Arianna Huffington’s political positions have shifted dramatically towards the left. She now describes herself as a “progessive independent” who is “coming from the fourth dimension of political time and space.”

In 2000 Arianna Huffington was deeply involved in staging the “Shadow Conventions” designed as media propaganda shows to undermine Republicans and nudge Democrats farther to the political left. These mock “conventions” were organized by the “Shadow Party” organizations funded by George Soros and other wealthy leftists.

Bush and Obama borrowing money from the banking class in order to give it to the banking class isn't a revolution. It's corruption, with the taxpayer paying the interest for the next six hundred years.

AM has lost nearly all it's audience, with the under age 50 group giving less than 10% of its radio listening to the band, Since advertisers put a brick wall at 49 or 55 years of age for campaigns, there is rapidly, even without the recession, falling revenue.

The viable format on AM, news/talk, is moving to FM. When the significant news talkers in markets like Chattanoga, TN, are both on FM, it means there is nothing to make people go to AM for. And it is now absolutely proven that when the same format is moved to FM, the desirable younger 35-54 demos will listen, and a lot. So AM will be left with a few niche religious and ethnic and brokered options, and sputter on for many years, but with essentially no audience. In smaller markets, where there are not enough ethnic or preaching options, many will go dark.

At some point, the band will clear out enough to be reorganized with fewer, higher powered stations, perhaps. But as the existing marketable listeners age and the formats move to FM, overall AM listening will hit under 5% in the next 5 to 7 years and then nobody will listen. In many markets, already, AM use is nearly that low... Scrantoon /NE PA is now around 8% AM use.

Not true. As society moved to villages millennia ago, each person took a specific job, such as tanner or butcher or cook. Each did jobs for others, and a primitive form of barter allowed the distribution of each person's labors. Today, those things we can't do, like dispose of trash or build roads or libraries, we pay for with the fruit of our labor, money. In other words, we buy those things we need, and sometimes the provider of the goods or services is the government.

Again, "Hispanic" is a culture, not a race. And culture is learned, not

That may explain the coal deposits but not the oil. Oil is NOT a

Actually Am NewsTalkers can survive very well, but it means actually being a local community radio station! Doesn't mean you can't have Glen Beck, it means being more than a repeater of national news pretending to be local. It means investing in talent again, providing real local news. It also means serving your niche very well, adults 35+

Radio lost the digital war to the internet and Ipods. Radio doesn't matter to kids anymore, like it did when you and I grew up. Other devices have replaced radio.

Radio is about people,

True the system only works well on stations with 100K. But also, the content sucks! Imagine Clear Channel content only it sounds a little better.

No, it's not. There is a branch of my family, with the surname of "Gleason" in Mexico with accomplishments such as being dean of a faculty at the UNAM, and the mother of a former Mexican ambassador to Great Britain.

Of course, the original form of that surname is Celt, and comes from the Northwestern part of the Iberian Peninsula, morphed only by long usage in southwestern Ireland.

I know Hispanics with surnames like Liberman... in that case, the family members qualified for minority tax certificates when they bought KLVE and KTNQ in Los Angeles. Or names like Riekehoff, Fujimori, Kirchner, O'Higgins, Fourquets, Bonet, Hadad, Slim, Dassum, Nebot, Fox, Rosenblat, Pisterman, Smirnoff and many more, and all are Hispanics of some international prominence or local fame.

It's not about names. Even the original OMB and Bureau of the Census definition, made before the 1980 Census, said that the quality of being Hispanic is related to the culture of or derived from the usage of the Spanish language.

I left Cleveland in early adolescence, although I grew up in a multilingual home... the "other" 50 years of my adolescence and adult life have either been in Latin America or in totally Hispanic communities and environments in the US.

Nice try; culture is a product of environment.

WIBC, KTAR, KIRO, KSL, WTOP. Very localized AM news talkers or news outlets that have moved to FM (or are transitioning by simulcast) and seen the ratings in 35-54, the only salable part of the audience, grown immensely.

35-54 will not listen, for the most part, to AM.

If HD radio actually served a mass market, then, by now, it would be sufficiently established that the poor economy would only be delaying HD radio's potential competitors.

How many current stations even approach the limits of dynamic range of FM? Here, there were a couple of classical stations, but one has been gone for a few years.

Since this is a DXer's forum, shouldn't HD radio discussions be taken to mean AM IBOC by default, rather than FM?

And how about the sound of HD AM?

Great post, Jim! The more negative posts that flood the Internet, the more Booble is going to get frustrated and look even more foolish. I certainly have done my part, as these Google Analytics reports show:

http://groups.google.com/group/ibiquity-hd-radio-questionnaire?lnk=srg&hl=en&ie=UTF-8

20,000 hits from over 90 countries! I bet that is really pissing off Bob - LOL! Yes, we must continue to flood the Internet, as Struble has no plans on giving up. Here is Struble's original HD Radio Questionnaire, before Jabobs/iBiquity pulled this original and replaced it with this sanitized version:

Original: http://img220.imageshack.us/img220/7420/149173fee7f5c5714844774hn0.jpg

Sanitized: http://www.jacobsmediaonline.com/ibiquity/

Jabobs cut out all questions that would have implicated HD Radio as a failure. But, too fucking late - Jabobs forgot about the cached version on surveymonkey.com, and only revamped the original on his site and his cache. Then I contacted Gorman and he worte this blurp

"Radio: High Deception"

"But the best comes at the expense of consultant and paid iBiquity HD Radio shill Fred Jacobs... Here’s a tale of two research studies, one of which vanished into thin air – or at least was thought to. You see, it started when a new 41-question survey about HD Radio from Jacobs for iBiquity was mentioned in a Radio-Info.com forum on October 31. Almost immediately, the original survey vanished and was replaced by this sanitized 16-question version... So who pulled the original HD Radio survey – and why?"

http://tinyurl.com/5taxdz

Here are the true numbers of HD Radio stations converted - a little over 1,700, not "near 2,000", as Struble claims:

http://www.fcc.gov/mb/audio/digital/index.html

And, these claims have gone on for years:

"Have 200 HD Radio stations gone missing?"

"The HD Radio camp is advertising that there are currently over 1,500 radio stations now broadcasting in HD (from its website, to press releases as well as in various other promotions)... but yet only 1,300 have filed with the FCC."

http://tinyurl.com/3yl8ma iBiquity's new chipset is still to big and way too power hungry. Struble claims that he will have a portable HD/MP3 player this Summer:

"A portable HD Radio for your troubles, sir?"

"This is the portable radio that’s supposed to rescue HD Radio from obscurity. It was showed off at last week’s CES, but since its name wasn’t the Palm Pre no one gave a damn. It’s the KRI Armband Portable HD Radio Player, and, as the name suggests, it’s a portable HD radio."

http://tinyurl.com/9wht5c

But I doubt it, because:

"Sub-$50 Portable HD Radio landing this summer"

"As well as HD Radio it'll be able to pick up FM broadcasts, but there's no word on battery life, AM capabilities or manufacturer."

http://tinyurl.com/p442xd

"SiPort Releases Single-Chip Solution (SP1010)"

"The single-chip HD Radio IC is small — 9 x 9 millimeters, or about one-third of an inch square — and draws 110 milliwatts of power, several times less than competitors, SiPort says... That compares to a prototype KRI armband MP3 player/HD Radio receiver that iBiquity displayed in its booth at CES, the smallest device that an IBOC chip has been integrated into so far. That device uses 500 milliwatts of power and would last between six to eight hours after one charge, Velamuri estimated."

http://www.rwonline.com/article.aspx?articleId=79000&mnu_id=14

"SP1010 Features"

"Multi-band, multi-standard broadcast digital audio and digital video receiver supporting: Total power dissipation of 110 mW in HD Radio Playback."

http://tinyurl.com/c6rqv7

"Music playback time (battery life)"

"Music playback time is the officially quoted longest time that a single battery charge will last when you use the phone as a music player only. Usually those numbers are only achievable when the phone is set to Flight mode (i.e. all transceivers are off) and the headphones are used (as opposed to the loudspeaker)."

http://www.gsmarena.com/glossary.php3?term=music-playback-time

Samsung's HD chipset never materialzed because it could only run on a set of batteries for two hours. SiPort lied, as its claims were for HD Raadio Playback Mode, only! LOL!

"Is HD Radio Toast?"

everything in its power to destroy demand(wages), and it looks like it was successful again.

For efficiency the semiconductors have to switch as quickly as possible in power supplies of any type. The faster switching generally creates more electrical noise. The physical design and proper bypassing reduces the electrical noise. Good design with small current noise loops that don't radiate can keep them quiet.

After 12 years of Obama this country will be so dumbed down they'll care.

All deviant behavior will be the norm by definition.

Some people have flat panels instead of CRT monitors and their equipment maybe plugged into noise suppression power strips. Antenna type and location can make a big difference.

Naomi Wolf loves to wallow in this sort of thing so I would say she is the one that is stimulated by it and the Huffington Post is a liberal joke on the public similar to the Jeff Rense web site.

It took FM over 3 decades to develop. While the HD2 concept came mostly from the NPR affiliates who wanted more programming, the opportunities in specialized, second tier formats do exist. Whether the economy will allow that to be developed remans to be seen.

They can't, mostly because of noise floor concerns in the listening environment. In the case of the HD1 channel, there is an option for quieter environments now.

There is no FM DX? That's now one of the more interesting areas of DXing.

It is good, but the issue is audio sources. News stations that use cellulars and other compressed sources for reports can sound horrible because of the addition of different codecs.

The real issue is that AM, on today's receivers and in today's noisy environment, is dying and is very old technology.

At the end of the day, what you think is irrelevant. A denial from you, in fact, is an affirmation of truth.

Hell, you are the person who denies that AM confirmations of reception are called "veries" despite hundreds of reams of DX News, DX Monitor, Radex, NNRC bulletins, etc., containing evidence to the contrary.

I disagree with this. For the public good, so that there is reliable communications durning disaster events, the public has to rely on simple proven technology. AM receivers are everywhere as portables, table radios, and in cars. It is low cost, low tech, and everywhere.

I don't think AMBCB is going to go away anytime soon.

Manufacturers are starting to realize that the AM band is not necessary in multifuncition devices, and we are starting to see FM only devices, particularly in the areas of media players, iPod and iPhone docks (mine has FM only), etc.

Granted, there are lots of radios out there... but most people under 30 or 40 would not even think of going to AM in an emergency, since they have no familiarity with AM or what goes on there... and with news and talk stations moving rapidly to FM, there will be no service of value left there in most markets.

Life in a Medieval Village by Gies, shows there were times, like the grain harvest, when everyone chipped in to get it all in before it got rained on. There also deals between villages as well as villagers. Quite often villages were like small businesses, each with a specialty- as above, a tannery, pottery, smelter....

Only, when war, pandemic, or revolution cut off trade, they could fall back on growing their own food, weaving their own clothes, cutting their own firewood, timber, and lumber, and meeting all their needs until the economy turned around again. Rather than, as we see small business do now, going bankrupt.

I don't think that is the reason. It is easier to implement FM because it is in the range of 87 to 107 MHz. The digital noise is harder to eliminate low frequency AM and loop type antennas are bulkier so if you want to add radio FM is the easier way to go.

AMBCB radios are everywhere. Everyone is familiar with them even if they don't normally used them.

Liberal-Progressives are running a war against the poor. Look at their attempts at eugenics in the neighborhoods of the poor. The Progressives have propagandized their plans to control lives of the poor, beginning with the family and children. Progressives have convinced the poor that they are incapable of making decisions for themselves.

Carrier came up at 0016 on 11905 with test tones till 0020. Sign on sequence pretty much as Scott has described above.

Weak, but still audible. Pretty darn close to a perfect gray line, and improving here as sunset approaches my QTH (location, for those in Glendale)

Using the Drake R8B and 70' N-S wire.

If you ask the average person under 35 what AM radio is, most will give a wrong answer or make a comment about it being what grand dad listens to, and they have no idea what might be on AM... and with news talk rapidly moving to FM, there will be no reason to listen in most markets.

< SNIP >

I'm of the opinion that it clearly cost more money to include AMBCB. The earphone cord can be a good portable FM antenna for instance and there is no place to put the AM loop stick. I think that is the main reason not the AM versus FM band advertising revenue.

Interesting scenario, albeit gloomy.

But I don't think we'll ever get to see how a single.
worldwide, currency works out. Too much desire for various types of sovereignty on the part of nations.

The EU isn't really ONE country, like the USA is.

And Britain kept the pound, rather than adopting the Euro.

Not enough unity of thought out there.

If there's ever a single planetary currency, I doubt if it'll happen within the next 50 years.

And if it takes that long, I'd have to reach 117 in order to see it.

So much for MY wish. :)

Employees in Right-to Work States -- DEFEND that Right!!
Because THIS is what you will be in for if the Loathsome
"Unionization's Camel's Nose Act" is passed by Congress!
(Here come the GOONS!!)

It's DECEPTIVELY entitled the "Employees' Free Choice Act."

But it guarantees the OPPOSITE of freedom!

As THIS astute person was kind enough to tell us ---

"I love the pro-union responses! I'm amazed they can type such disingenuous drivel with a straight face! I see they don't address the fact that the bill allows and encourages unions to apply unlimited pressure on employees to
to sign the cards.

"I have the "United Steel Workers of America" union at my place and twice now the employees have tried to de-certify. The USW sent goons from a number of surrounding states to harass and threaten the employees in person
at their homes, at all hours of the night and weekends to the point that many complained to the National Labor Board and a number of them quit. The next round is coming this year and the employees seem prepared for a battle. The USW sure doesn't want to give up the money they get each
week for nothing."

That the best you got, princess? Most of us like to laugh at you and your sad, sad, delusions of birth certificate kooktardery and upcoming persecutions. You really need to lay off the bad tv and stale paranoia and get to where you can get professional help. Ditch your Gene Shalit looks and try to integrate back into the rest of society. It'll help you immensely. I mean everyone is entitled to be stupid but you like to abuse the privilege.

Telemundoh! would have thrived during the days of the black plague.
There always has to be someone who likes it when other people get to suffer due to no fault of their own.

I wonder how quickly Telemundoh! would change his tune if he were to lose his job and needed to spend a $100k for medical care ...

If reality were a road, Telemundoh! would have no grip on it. Every see anyone as paranoid as Telemundoh? Everything except for the glorious righteous right-wing path can't be good. So damn reactionary without ever knowing what he's really standing against. No follow through with any intelligent thought just a knee jerk reaction. Who would have thought that blinders make the man?

That old Motto,,, The Captain Always Goes Down With The Ship.
Some people refer to Airplanes as Ships.That's OK, it works for me.

Nazi G.H.W.Bush bailed out of that Airplane in World War Two, leaving those other two guys in there to die.
There was a Tailgunner (I forget his name) in the Airplane in front, he saw and described the whole thing.

Here ya go: the answer is no. Torture does not work. People being tortured make up all sorts of bullshit to get the suffering to stop.

What do you say, old man? Are you willing to be waterboarded 10-15 times? A simple yes or no will do.

Liberal-Progressives are running a war against the poor. Look at their attempts at eugenics in the neighborhoods of the poor. The Progressives have propagandized their plans to control lives of the poor, beginning with the family and children. Progressives have convinced the poor that they are incapable of making decisions for themselves.

Progressives are selling the idea that fathers are the problem and offer the women and children a way to get rid of and avoid evil fathers. Low and behold there are more divorces and more unwed moms.

Everyone thank the Progressives.

I'm not a part of your life so stop projecting your little daily dramas upon me. If you are gay that's your problem that I want nothing to do

You should hear my friend, who is super conservative, wail about the unions, and how they wrecked businesses, etc, but when his parents both became ill, it was those union benefits that kept them in their house and not in his. Of course, he's in a union too! A county employees union, but a union nonetheless. I can get him stuttering like a machine gun by just mentioning that. He's not nearly as "rigid" as Telemundoh is.

He's like a dog walking along, on trail for something, ignoring all kinds of hints along the way, and walking off a cliff.

It cracks me up how he gets so angry when his viewpoints are dared questioned. I guess he's tired of all the ridicule about the Obama BC nonsense. But then again, if you believe in kooktardery, you should expect to be called a kooktard. And I'm happy to provide that service for him.

Reading comprehension is a big problem for the Canadian retard as I have stated numerous times I don't watch TV and his act as Kookaburra Jr. is
